Reds Rip Nazi Lines In Many-Prong Gain

LONDON, Jan. 22 (AP)—The Russians have driven to the Deutsch Eylau area, 45 mlies from the Baltic in East Prussia, and to the Allenstein area, 30 miles inside the Junkers province, the German high command said today. Bitter fighting was reported between Insterburg and the Kurisches Haff, a coastal lagoon, where the Russians were sweeping around Insterburg to the north and driving southwest to Konigsberg, East Prussian capital.

The Germans admitted further gains east of Oppeln, Silesian railroad and administrative center, where the Russians have driven into Germany.

Due west of Warsaw, the communique said, the Russians also gained ground between Torun on the Vistula and Kalisz, only 25 miles from the German frontier and about 195 miles from Berlin.

Eddy Gilmore, Associated Press correspondent in Moscow, reported that the Red armies had broken the first defense line east of the Oder river in Silessia and that in East Prussia the Russians had driven to within 52 miles of the Baltic.

Pushing northward from captured Tannenburg, he reported, Marshal Rokossovsky's tanks approached within 10 to 11 miles of the main trunk railway connecting East Prussia with Berlin.

His big guns already had begun to shell the railway's approaches in several sectors.

In the center of the great Soviet winter front in Poland, Marshal Zhukov's First White Russian Army was getting the upper hand in a big tank battle between the Warta and Prosna rivers, and pushed to within 200 miles of Berlin.

Zhukov was fighting for routes into Poznan (Posen) and the German frontier just beyond. His tanks, by striking through strong panzer units moved out to halt him, have gotten closer to the German capital than any land army in this war.

The Germans are fighting back furiously in this area, field dispatches said, but Zhukov still was on the move with no indications that his offensive was materially slowing down.

The First Ukrainian Army under Marshal Konev achieved great strategic success in breaking the first line thrown up by the Germans east of the Oder. It stretched through Oels, Namslau and Kreuzberg down to Beuthen, and was entered in at least five places.

Konev's tanks are now about 14 miles from the main railway connecting Silesia with Berlin and 200 miles from Berlin.

Russian columns pushed within 35 miles of Breslau and were reported causing great panic through the entire area.

Enveloping Tannenberg, shrine of German militarism, another swift-moving Red Army under Marshal Rokossovsky bit off a huge chunk of East Prussia, stabbing 16 miles in a drive up the old Polish Corridor.

EASTERN FRONT—Russians pushing into East Prussia from the south (1) threatened the main railway to Berlin and drove north of captured Tannenberg toward Danzig. In the central sector (2) the Reds were plunging toward Poznan . . . while, to the south, their thrust (3) into Silesia had cracked German defenses between Oels and Beuthen.

Panic Stirs Berlin Call To Arms

LONDON, Jan. 22 (AP)—A call went out over the German armed forces' radio today for everyone in the nation to join this "holy battle for liberty" as Russian forces sweeping into Silesia drove to a point approximately six hours by fast express from Berlin.

"Damned be our enemies. This soulless, bestial, overwhelming mass onslaught must be held at all costs," the announcer shouted. He demanded that "every man who can carry any kind of weapon, in fact anybody who can shoot," join in defense of the Reich.

The Nazis themselves in home broadcasts did not try to conceal that "the hour of greatest peril to the Fatherland has struck," and for the first time admitted Berlin itself is threatened by the Russian offensive.

"If the Russians capture Poznan (in west Poland) then the threat to Berlin enters the acute stage," said a Berlin dispatch to the Stockholm Aftonbladet passed by Nazi censors.

This correspondent quoted German military spokesmen as admitting the Russians had succeeded in bringing masses of infantry forward "faster than expected" and reserves thrown into the battle are "mainly Volkssturm (homeguard) formations."

Indicating the confusion caused by the rapid Red advance, a German commentator said: "German listeners, I cannot tell you where the front runs, where our reserves are, or where the Volkssturm are thrown in."

The commentator's description of scenes inside Berlin indicated rumors were sweeping the capital and hysteria growing.

"Everybody in Berlin talks of news from the eastern front," he said, and told of workers' concern for their families evacuated to East Prussia.

In the past, Nazi broadcasts beamed overseas have been amazingly frank—sometimes obviously to create undue optimism in Allied countries—but seldom have German reports to their own people displayed such anxiety.

A strange announcement preceded the home news broadcast today when the announcer said, "The Reich's railway councilor, Heinrich Grossmueller, herewith is asked immediately to communicate with the Reich's railway ministry."

A listener who has been monitoring the German radio since the beginning of the war said never before had such a personal announcement been heard on a news program.

Whether Grossmueller had disappeared or the high command had decided to make a change in plans and was unable to reach him due to broken communications was not clear.

Heinrich Himmler still is the kingpin in the Nazis furious defense of the Reich, the German home broadcasts made clear.

Appealing for clothes in a "people's sarifice" campaign, the announcer said contributors "will be rewarded by a picture of Himmler, personally autographed."

Declaring a "golden book of honor" is being kept, the announcer warned "woe to the man whose name is not on the list" and asserted "the real German can be recognized by his patched trousers."

Stockholm dispatches said a large part of eastern Germany is in a panic, with refugees streaming from Danzig, Poznan and Warthegau in the face of the mounting Russian offensive.

The Bern correspondent of Stockholm's Aftonbladet quoted a neutral diplomat as saying "Berlin is being evacuated with great speed," but there was no confirmation from other sources.

YD in Van of Push on St. Vith

By JAMES M. LONG

PARIS, Jan. 22 (AP)—The Germans plodded back toward the Siegfried Line today in an outright withdrawal from the Ardennes salient, while British and French Armies tightened pressure at opposite flanks of the snow-drifted western front. Elements of the 26th (Yankee) Division of the Third Army fought into the Luxembourg road center of Wiltz, southern anchor of receding German lines southward from St. Vith. This marked a mile advance across the Wiltz river during the night.

The First Army closed within two and a half miles of St. Vith. Gen. Eisenhower's communique listed 14 captured towns, nearly all in Belgium and Luxembourg, where the deflated bulge was less than 150 square miles.

The British moved to within 35 miles of Dusseldorf and five miles of the Roer river in a fresh two-mile advance through northwest Germany.

The French First Army, driving up the Rhine and through the Vosges from Mulhouse, was slowed by deep snow. German attacks north of Strasbourg, powered by five or six divisions, and in the dormant Saarlautern area across the Saar river were declared repulsed.

The whole portentious next phase of the war in the west was slowly taking shape. It was obvious the powerful influence of the terrific Russian blows against the eastern front was being felt. Gen. Eisenhower's armies and Marshal Stalin's masses were slightly more than 500 miles apart.

Although it is too early yet to see the full effect, there are these possibilities:

1—The Germans, who rushed at least some of the thin armored reserve south to the Alsace plain for a "last try" blow at Strasbourg, may have had to switch their strategy in the middle of the move, and save whatever strength possible for the supreme test in the spring and summer.

Yanks Forge Ahead Half Way to Manila

By the Associated Press

Armored American columns rolled through the smouldering ruins of Tarlac today to within 60 miles of Manila as all Allied offensives against the Japanese gathered speed.

U. S. Sixth Army troops on Luzon island approached the halfway mark on the road to Manila at Tarlac while Allied amphibious forces captured three more islands—two in the Philippines and one off Burma on the seaway to Rangoon and Singapore.

The Tokyo radio reported that some 550 U. S. carrier-borne planes struck at Okinawa Island in the Ryukyu chain, south of Japan proper, today for the second successive day. The report was not acknowledged by U. S. sources.

This is one of the largest raids that Tokyo has ever reported.

Reports from Tokyo and Honolulu indicated U. S. Third Fleet forces were again smashing at Formosa. Land-based planes ranged beyond Formosa to hit a convoy off the China coast, struck at Wake Island, the Kuriles, and the Bonins and Volcanos 700 miles south of Tokyo.

Superforts reconnoitering the Osaka area of Japan proper brought back photos showing the great Kawasaki aircraft plant was knocked out in a single raid.

Tarlac is the largest and most important town captured by Yank forces. The Japanese abandoned it after dousing buildings with gasoline and applying the torch.

"We captured an empty, smoldering shell," wrote Associated Press War Correspondent Fred Hampson. "The enemy systematically destroyed his equipment, supplies and much of the city with them."

Converging U. S. Sixth Army columns also swept over two more airfields, bringing to five the number they hold on Luzon island. They are 22 miles from Clark Field, most important in the Philippines. Patrols fanned out to take Victoria and La Paz on their left flank. La Paz is 58 miles from Manila.

In the North Burma-China sector, Chinese troops captured Wanting and closed from two directions on Japanese units clinging to a small sector of the Burma road.

Weather Ties Up Italian Front

ROME, Jan. 22—Bad weather stalled action on the Italian front, with activity confined largely to artillery duels and patrol operations in deep snow, Allied Mediterranean headquarters announced today. The Mediterranean Air Force flew 1500 sorties.

A German raiding party preceded by an artillery barrage was thrown back after penetrating Eighth Army positions northwest of Alphonsine.

Oil installations in Austria, at Fiume and near Cavarzere, and Po valley and Brenner bridges were bombed yesterday following night bomber attacks on railyards at Udine in northern Italy and communications behind the enemy line.

Heavies Battle Gale Over Reich

LONDON, Jan. 22 (AP)—Flying Fortresses and Liberators from Britain braved wintry gales over the continent and bombed targets inside Germany this afternoon.

Blizzards checked the pace of the Allied air operations during the morning.

The day raid followed an attack on Wassel, 75 miles south of Hannover, last night by RAF bombers.

WEDS ROSE BOWL STAR— Lt. (jg) Patricia Keegan, of Waban, one of the first five girls in the nation to join the WAVES, yesterday became the bride of Navy Lt. Ernest Delaney, former Duke University football star. They were wed at San Pedro, Cal., where both are stationed. Delaney played end against Southern California in the Rose Bowl game in 1939.

Shoot-at-Sight Hunt For Natick Deserter

Under orders to shoot on sight, state and military police and officers from Natick and Framingham combed the woods between those two cities today in a manhunt for Pvt. Arnold Boudreau, Jr., 21-year-old Army prisoner who escaped last September from a military prison at Ft. Knox, Ky.

Boudreau, armed with a .32 caliber revolver, has threatened to shoot it out with anyone who tries to capture him and has boasted that he will never be taken alive, Army officials stated.

Police guards were posted at the home of Boudreau's wife, Barbara, in Western ave., Natick, and at his father's home in Beacon st., Natick, on the chance he might appear.

FBI agents learned that Boudreau, who broke out of jail at Fort Knox last Sept. 16, has been working at a war plant in the Natick area for several weeks. He has been the object of a nation-wide search.

His wife reported he suddenly appeared at her home Saturday afternoon and, refusing her plea to give himself up, forced her at gunpoint to drive him in her automobile to an overnight cabin in Saugus.

Sunday afternoon he told her he wanted her to drive him to Maine, but on the turnpike between Saugus and Newburyport the car had a flat tire. When he got out to examine it, Barbara drove off, leaving him behind.

"I begged him to give himself up," Barbara reported to military authorities, "but he slapped my face every time I suggested it. He threatened me with the gun several times, too."

Mrs. Boudreau said her husband was serving a 10-year term as a chronic deserter. She blamed his plight on Army routine which she declared had made him temporarily mentally upset.

After she fled from her husband, Barbara said she abandoned her car in Newburyport, took a bus to Boston, then another bus to Natick.

Police at Framingham learned that the escaped soldier thumbed a ride into Newburyport and there prevailed on a motorist to drive him to Natick, promising to pay him $20. When they reached the Natick railroad station Boudreau bolted from the car and was last seen racing along the railroad tracks toward Framingham.

A posse of military police found footprints in the snow where he had gone into the woods, and this entire area was surrounded by armed officers. Other police made a search of all rooming houses and small hotels within an area of 20 miles.

If he eludes the searching groups, Army intelligence officers believe he may seek work either as a laborer or as an automobile mechanic, and notified employers to be on the alert.

Boudreau is described by police at 5 ft. 8 inches, 180 pounds. He has brown hair and light complexion. When last seen he was wearing a gabardine topcoat and gray soft hat.

Natick police reported that the escaped soldier broke into his father's filling station in East Central st. Friday night and stole the revolver he is carrying.

Bob Hope Fans Prepare Record Welcome at Show

Bob Hope and his rousing radio company will arrive in Boston late tomorrow night, all primed for the tumultuous welcome which awaits them when they appear at Boston Garden next Wednesday evening in the greatest show of all time.

Their arrival in Boston will follow their regular weekly radio broadcast from the Quonset Naval Base in Rhode Island tomorrow evening, under sponsorship of the Pepsodent Co. Following the broadcast they will entrain for this city, prepared for the big show.

The show is sponsored by the Record-American and Sunday Advertiser for its Hospitalized Servicemen's Fund, a cause to which Bob Hope, idol of servicemen in camps throughout the country and in the distant outposts and battle areas overseas, is giving his free energy and talent.

Bob and his company will be on the stage at the Boston Garden show for a full hour and a half during a three-hour show which will start at 8 p. m. and ending at 11 p. m. His valiant company, all of whom have shared with him the dangers and hardships of long and arduous overseas tours, includes Frances Langford, No. 1 songstress of the armed services; Jerry Colonna, the boy from Boston; Skinnay Ennis, Vera Vague and Toni Romano.

Every penny of the proceeds of the show, which sold out within three hours of the moment when tickets went on sale, will be devoted to the cause of disabled hospitalized veterans of New England. Among guests of the Record-American and Sunday Advertiser at the show will be 500 of these veterans, brought here from various New England hospitals.

Other noted entertainers of stage, radio and night clubs will appear for the remaining half of the program. Through the courtesy of Fred Nerret, American Guild of Variety Artists' national representative in New England, they are permitted to donate their services free to the cause of disabled war veterans.

These entertainers include: From the Latin Quarter, Pat Rooney, the Edward Brothers, the Amory Brothers and the Don Arden Dancing Beauties; from the Mayfair, Gracie Barrie, Herb Lewis and Mack and Desmond, and from the RKO Theater, the King Cole trio, Organist John Kiley, Songstress Germaine, Song Stylist Cindy Parker, and the popular Buddy Bonds, Music of Romance organist at the Myles Standish Hotel. Noble and King and the Aristocrats will appear from the Satire Room.

Musical background for this spectacular show will be furnished by Boston's popular maestro, Tony Bruno, whose Latin Quarter orchestra ranks with the finest in the country.

The tremendous enthusiasm and response to the forthcoming appearance of Bob Hope and his company is Boston's tribute not only to his talent and popularity as the No. 1 comedian of the air and as a topflight screen star, but to his generosity and unsparing devotion to the cause of fighting men the world over.

At the risk and sacrifice of his own career he has encircled the globe to bring laughter and hope and cheer to battle-weary men, to the sick and the wounded in hospitals, to lonely soldiers and sailors who have hailed him as the man who, for a minute or an hour, helped them to forget their loneliness and their dreary war routine.

Bob Hope and his company will find in Boston next Wednesday night a throng of fans who will never forget what he has done for their own well-loved boys, and his welcome will come from their hearts.

News of 3 Dead Trails Navy Dad

Red Cross officials today were trying to locate F 1-c John Adams, on Navy duty somewhere in the Atlantic, to notify him that three of his five children were burned to death when fire swept their home in Moreland st., Roxbury.

The tragic blaze, in which the victims' mother and baby sister were overcome by smoke and slightly burned, was blamed by firemen on children playing with matches. The fire caused damage of $5000 to the three-story wooden dwelling and drove 20 persons, 17 of them children, to the street.

Richard Adams Edward Adams

The fire victims were Edward Adams, 4; Richard, 3, and Judith, 2. Their mother and sister, Janet, 9 months old, were treated at City Hospital for smoke inhalation and slight burns.

John Eide of Moreland st. was injured when he was blown downstairs by an explosion as he attempted to enter the second-floor apartment to rescue the children before the arrival of firemen.

The fire, in the heart of a thick-settled district, spread to the house next door but was extinguished there with only slight damage.

Deputy Chief Patrick F. O'Neil said the rear bedroom where the children's bodies were found, was strewn with wooden matches.

Mrs. Adams was later released from the hospital and went to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alton Howell, 79 W. Cottage st., Roxbury, where she was placed under the care of a physician. Robert "Sonny" Adams, 5, who was in Sunday school at the time of the fire, was also brought to the Howells' home.

First to arrive on the scene after the alarm had been sounded were Firemen John Williams and Edward Clark of Engine 12 and members of Rescue Co. No. 2. They found heavy black smoke pouring from the second floor apartment and Mrs Adams screaming in the hallway, "My babies."

She led them to a bedroom on the second floor, where Janet, overcome by smoke, was rescued and carried outdoors. Mrs. Adams then collapsed and with the baby was sent to the hospital.

Crawling through the kitchen, which they described as a raging inferno of flames the firemen made their way into another bedroom where they found little Edward, Richard and Judith, all badly burned and apparently unconscious. They were rushed to the hospital but were pronounced dead on arrival.

The flames worked their way up to the top floor, where Louis Dickey, his wife and their four children, were forced to flee and made their way downstairs with difficulty. The children were Melvin, 12, Marjory, 11, Robert, 5, and Richard, 4.

On the first floor Francis E. Kelly and his wife, Anne, with their son, James, 8, were driven out.

FD Stirs Storm Paying His Debt to Wallace

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22 (INS)—President Roosevelt has given Henry Agard Wallace a chance today to become the Democratic presidential nominee in 1948 by choosing him as his fourth-term Secretary of Commerce, with its vast control over a multitude of government finance and business organizations.

The President "fired" Jesse Jones in order to turn his great govenment powers over to Wallace for three reasons.

First, the President has a warm personal affection for Wallace.

Second, he desired to reward Wallace for his great loyalty in the fourth term campaign.

Third, the President really wanted to place a token in his own personal conscience fund for having dropped Wallace from the fourth term ticket—a token that gave Wallace his choice of all government positions, exclusive of the State, War and Navy Departments.

Wallace picked Jones' job and got it.

If Wallace is confirmed by the Senate, he will have won a major victory over the Democratic high command, which tried for seven months to drive him out of the administration. The regular Democrats were aided by a number of New Dealers.

That there will be bitter opposition in Congress is shown by such comments as this one by Sen. O'Daniel (D.) of Texas: "It has the appearance of a New Deal political payoff appointment, dictated by Sidney Hillman and his Communistic comrades who are running the country."

Jones himself, in a letter bowing to the demands of the President, said:

"For you to turn over all these assets and responsibilities to a man inexperienced in business and finance will, I believe, be hard for the business and financial world to understand."

1—In the summer of 1944 the Democratic high command initiated a coast-to-coast campaign to discredit Wallace politically, terminating in the first week of July when they convinced Mr. Roosevelt Wallace would "hurt the ticket" if renominated.

2—Reluctantly, because he preferred Wallace as a running-mate, the President personally hinted to his Vice-President to retire from the campaign.

3—Convinced he was being victimized by a "smear" campaign, Wallace told the President he would not retire from the race for Vice President nomination unless specifically asked to do so by Mr. Roosevelt. The President did not make the request.

4—Sidney Hillman, head of the CIO Political Action Committee and a leading Wallace supporter, was talked into accepting Sen. Harry S. Truman—now Vice President—as his second choice before the Democratic convention met. Hillman's acceptance of Truman doomed Wallace.

Throughout the late spring and early summer of 1944, the President told intimates he really wanted Wallace on the ticket in event he ran for a fourth term.

This aroused the bitter enmity of the Democratic high command. Democratic National Chairman Robert E. Hannegan, Postmaster General Frank C. Walker, Jesse Jones and Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes participated in it.

Finally, in June, the President sent Wallace on a diplomatic mission to China. During his absence, the Democratic high command inundated the President with anti-Wallace propaganda. It was to the effect that Roosevelt might lose a fourth term race with Wallace on the ticket but that he could win with any regular Democrat as a running-mate.

In reality, the high command feared Wallace might some day succeed to the presidency and turn the whole administration over to the left wing of the party. Hence they decreed his defeat.

When Wallace returned from Chine he went directly to the White House.

The President and Wallace discussed their political futures frankly and bluntly. Mr. Roosevelt told Wallace "the boys" had told him Wallace had no political strength in the country or in the convention. Wallace demurred, saying he had received reports to the contrary.

He said frankly he had no intention of withdrawing his name from the convention unless specifically asked to do so by the President. Mr. Roosevelt sat silent a moment and then said: "Well, Henry, I'm for you."

The President then asked Wallace what "you want me to do," and Wallace replied that he would like a letter of endorsement from the President, saying "I'd like you to say that if you were a delegate, you would vote for me in the convention." The letter was made public.

Wallace did not know it at the time but the President had already agreed to accept Sen. Truman as his running-mate, if the Missourian were nominated by the convention.

With Truman acceptable to the President, the Hannegan-Walker faction sought to cover up their choice. Hannegan spread the word in personal conferences that Mr. Roosevelt would accept any one of five men as a running-mate. This list was Wallace, Senate Leader Alben W. Barkley, War Mobilizer James F. Byrnes, Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas and Federal Judge Sherman Minton, of Indiana. Truman's name was not on the list.

While circulating the list of "acceptables," Hannegan learned with dismay that the President had given Wallace a letter of endorsement. Hannegan thereupon asked the President how his acceptance of Truman should be made known to the convention in the light of the Wallace letter.

Mr. Roosevelt suggested writing another letter, endorsing Truman. Ickes, who was in on this deal, insisted the letter include the name of Justice Douglas. Both names were in the letter.

The Truman-Douglas endorsement, dated July 19 at the White House, was handed Hannegan as the President passed through Chicago en route to the West coast on his visit to Pearl Harbor. It was at this meeting aboard the Roosevelt train that the President was said to have told Hannegan to "clear everyth ng with Sidney"—Sidney Hillman.

This reference to Hilman puzzled many Democrats. It was made because the President believed Hillman would protect Wallace's interests in the convention. However, Hillman was badly handicapped because he could not retreat from his earlier approval of Truman as a second choice.

History records that Hillman supported Wallace for one ballot. On the second ballot, the convention was stampeded to Truman.

When next they met—after Roosevelt's fourth-term victory—the President offered Wallace his choice of cabinet posts, exclusive of State, War and Navy. Wallace picked Commerce. And now he's going to get it.

Dad's Work Aids Boy's Bond Fund

Little Carl H. Amon, 3d, of Linnaean st., Cambridge, has $9.96 toward a war bond today because his lawyer-father spent Sunday delivering coal.

Atty. Carl H. Amon, Jr., a Dartmouth College and Harvard Law School graduate, answered the appeal of coal companies for men and was assigned to a truck in Chelsea by the Metropolitan Coal Co.

The attorney said he liked the work very much and added that the men at the yards laughed when he showed up for coal heaving duty with white socks and a bow tie as part of his attire.

Cigarets on Sale

NEW YORK, Jan. 22 (INS) — Psst! Wanna buy some cigarets—any popular brand, any quantity?

It's a cinch. Alaster C. McLaughlin, American Embassy clerk just arrived from Lisbon, said today.

Just hop a Pan-American clipper for the Portuguese capital. American cigarets are plentiful there, he says—for 32 cents a pack.

SUNDAY COALMAN, MONDAY LAWYER—Heeding the appeal for men to deliver vitally needed coal, Atty. Carl H. Amon, Jr., of Linnean st., Cambridge, graduate of Dartmouth and Harvard Law School, reported to the Metropolitan Coal office in Chelsea at 8 a. m. Sunday and put in a day delivering soft coal. Mrs. Amon feels the improved biceps, while son Carl, who will get a war bond from the money earned, looks on proudly.

Hulten Tells Jury Shot Was Accident

By JOSEPH THOMAS

LONDON, Jan. 22 (INS)—Pvt. Karl Gustav Hulten, 22, of Cambridge, Mass., testified today that George "Cleft Chin" Heath, London cab driver, for whose fatal shooting Hulten is being tried, was killed when a pistol was accidentally discharged in Heath's cab.

Hulten, jointly charged with Mrs. Elizabeth Jones, 18-year-old strip-tease dancer, with killing and robbing Heath, also denies he robbed Heath.

"He was not robbed by me," Hulten testified. "I did not take anything out of his pockets or off him."

Hulten stated that his sleeve caught on something in Heath's cab and the pistol, which he was holding in his hand after it had become dislodged from his belt and fell to the floor, was accidentally discharged.

"Are you asking the jury to believe that because your sleeve caught on something the pistol went off by itself?" Prosecuting Atty. L. T. Byrne asked.

"I certainly do, sir," Hulten replied.

Hulten said that he did not know that Heath was dead when he was arrested and denied that a statement he allegedly gave to U. S. Lt. Robert Earl De Mott was in his own words. The statement, quoting him as saying that he had pulled the trigger of the pistol which killed Heath, was not true, he said.

The court intervened to ask:

"Did you say that Lt. De Mott invented all that?"

"They are not my words," Hulten stated.

When Hulton left the stand Byrne began his summation to the jury with the blunt accusation that Hulton and Mrs. Jones were equally guilty of Heath's murder.

Under questioning, Hulten admitted he and Mrs. Jones had entered Heath's cab on the night of last Oct. 6 with the intention of robbing the driver.

Hulten testified that at the time he was AWOL, that he was not drawing Army pay and that on the night of Oct. 6 he had only $8 in his pocket. He denied that he had ordered Mrs. Jones to enter Heath's cab with him.

Hulten said he didn't realize the pistol—an automatic—was loaded when he got into the cab, and testified that he intended only to frighten Heath when he demanded money from the driver.

200th Hingham Warship Ready

The 200th vessel built at Bethlehem-Hingham shipyard a sylvan cove less than three years ago, will be launched tomorrow when an LST will "hit the water" to maintain an unsurpassed shipbuilding record.

The shipyard launched its first vessel Sept. 23, 1942, and since then has turned out better than one and one-half ships a week, according to Gen. Mgr. William H. Collins.

"The record is all the more remarkable when you consider that we had to train 22,000 out of the 23,000 workers," Collins said.

Included in the B-H yard's record-breaking accomplishments was the launching of six ships in seven days and constructing a destroyer in 25 days.

JEWISH CONGRESS CONVENES HERE—More than 600 delegates of the American Jewish Congress, meeting at the Hotel Bradford for their 27th annual convention, were warned of the country at one of the lectures. First Warship Honors Nurse

For the first time in its history the U. S. Navy will place in commission a combat vessel named in honor of a Navy nurse.

Next Saturday afternoon, January 27, at three o'clock, the new destroyer, the USS Higbee, will be commissioned at the Boston Navy Yard with impressive ceremonies honoring the late Mrs. Lenah S. Higbee, RN, only woman to receive the Navy Cross while still alive.

The occasion, which is to be attended by numerous dignitaries, has a special significance, in that it marks formal recognition by the Navy of the services of the nursing profession, particularly the Navy Nurse Corps.

At the close of the ceremonies, a Battle Flag will be presented to the officers and men of the Higbee by Miss Stella Goostray, RN, president of the National Nursing Council for War Service and superintendent of nurse training at Children's Hospital, Boston.

This flag is to be carried in battle and eventually returned to the Nursing Council.

More than thirty Navy nurses and Senior Cadet Nurses at the Chelsea Naval Hospital will be present at the commissioning ceremony when R. Adm. Felix Gygax, USN, commandant of the First Naval District and Boston Navy Yard, will place the destroyer in commission and Com. Lindsay Williamson, USN, of Tacoma, Md., will accept command as the ship's first captain.

Commander Williamson was born in Newtonville and his father, Albert L. Williamson, now lives in Fitchburg, while his sister, Mrs. H. G. Calvert, is a resident of Squantum.

Lt. Com. Edith Lindquist (NC), USN, chief nurse at Chelsea Naval Hospital, will bring a message from the superintendent of Navy nurses in Washington, Capt. Sue S. Dauser (NC), USN, acknowledging the honor the naming of this destroyer bestows on the Navy Nurse Corps.

The Higbee was launched at Bath, Me., last Nov. 12, and was christened in honor of Mrs. Higbee, one of but four women ever to receive the Navy Cross.

The citation for her World War I service reads:

"For distinguished service in the line of her profession, and unusual and conspicuous devotion to duty as superintendent of the Navy Nurse Corps."

The widow of the late Lt. Col. John H. Higbee, U. S. Marine Corps, Mrs. Higbee was born May 18, 1874, at Chatham, New Brunswick. She completed her nurse's training at the New York Post-Graduate Hospital in 1899, and took a further post-graduate course at Fordham Hospital, N. Y.

She was appointed a Navy nurse in 1908 and assigned to duty at the Naval Hospital in Washington. She became chief nurse in 1909 and superintendent of the Navy Nurse Corps in 1911, serving throughout the World War. She was honorably discharged, at her own request, in 1922. She died in January, 1941, and is buried in Arlington National Cemetery beside her husband.

She was the only woman to receive the Navy's highest honor while still alive. The other three nurses awarded the Navy Cross received them posthumously, for heroic work during the influenza epidemic.

Every nurse in this country feels she has a special stake in the Higbee and its gallant crew of officers and men, and messages are already pouring in, bidding it luck and victory.

America's newest ship will carry the prayers of thousands of them when it sets out for battle after Saturday for it is the first time in the history of our country they have been so honored and they feel it deeply and with hope and gratitude.

WAIT MILITARY ACTION TO RUSH OIL FOR HUB

City officials today awaited a reply from Washington to Acting Mayor John E. Kerrigan's urgent appeal that military assistance, if necessary, be used to move more than 100 tank cars, sidetracked en route to Boston with vitally needed oil supplies.

Kerrigan informed Washington authorities that Boston faces a fuel oil crisis which may result in a serious tieup of war industries, unless the tank cars, delayed in the Buffalo area and Middle West, are sped on their way immediately.

The acting mayor sent the following telegram to J. Monroe Johnson, director of the ODT in Washington and to Fuel Administrator Harold L. Ickes:

"Railroad delays have increased severity of present crisis in bunker oil in Boston area and are affecting all fuel supplies. One hundred tank cars en route to Boston are sidetracked in the Buffalo area and in western states there are lists of cars which were started north before Christmas and which are now more than 10 days overdue.

200 Become New Citizens

In this country every man is a sovereign but no one cares to wear a crown, Judge Francis J. W. Ford told more than 200 new citizens in Federal Court today.

He urged them to help protect the home front while the armed forces carry on their battle in behalf of democracy, to buy bonds and contribute to blood banks. He also stressed that they, Americans now, should familiarize themselves with the laws of the land and the functions of its democratic institutions.

Miniature American flags were pinned on the newly naturalized by a committee of the Ladies Auxiliary, American Legion, Mrs. Bertha Parkes, Mrs. Mary Durago and Miss Elizabeth McCarthy.

50 Students Flee Back Bay Fire

Fifty students, 15 of them girls, were safely led to the street through smoke-filled corridors today when fire broke out in the basement of Berkeley School, Commonwealth ave., Back Bay.

Police said the blaze, which was extinguished before it did much damage, had been caused by someone who carelessly disposed of a cigaret.

Flag Rebels Few In State's Schools

Only one tenth of one per cent of the school children of Massachusetts have registered opposition to saluting and pledging allegiance to the flag in the classrooms, Education

Commr. Julius E. Warren stated today at a hearing before the Legislative Education Committee.

"With that small percentage," declared Rep. Clark B. Partridge of Watertown, member of the committee hearing a proposal to repeal the flag-salute law, "this seems pretty trivial legislation to me."

Warren, sponsor of the measure, told the committee that he personally favored the flag salute law and would like to see it remain on the books. He said his bill was based on the opinion of former Atty. Gen. Robert T. Bushnell that children could not be required to salute the flag.

Raymond Fitzgerald, education department counsel, said he also favored retention of the law, but pointed out that under a Supreme Court ruling, declaring a similar law in West Virginia unconstitutional, his department was handicapped in allocating funds to purchase school flags until the present law was changed.

Sen. Charles G. Miles of Brockton opposed any change in the present law, and former Sen. Laurence Curtis, Back Bay, State commander of the Disabled American Veterans, offered an amendment eliminating penalties for school pupils who refused to salute the flag on religious grounds.

Past Grand Exalted Ruler John F. Malley of Newton said the Elks would fight any attempt to repeal the statute. He said the Elks renewed their stand, calling for retention of the law, at their State convention in 1943, following the Supreme Court ruling.

Opposition to the proposed change was voiced by Rep. David M. Celary of Charlestown, commander of the Suffolk County Council, VFW, who said:

"I am surprised that such an attempt to repeal the flag salute law would be made in time of war. Such an action strikes directly at our war effort by its lack of respect for our flag, and gives pacifists and isolationists a chance to back up their play."

Thomas F. Mackey, state commander of the American Legion, also assailed the Warren proposal.

"As usual, the opposition to this patriotic statute comes from the same sources which always have opposed it," Mackey said.

Relatives to Get Heroes' Medals

The Silver Star Medal for gallantry in action will be presented to relatives of three Greater Boston men tomorrow by Maj. Gen. Sherman Miles, commanding the First Service Command, at special ceremonies in his office, as follows:

Mrs. Edward Dwyer of Wonham st., Danvers, for her brother, S-Sgt. Edward P. McCarthy, killed in the Solomons.

George F. O'Brien of Bowers st., Newtonville, for his son, S-Sgt. George E. O'Brien, who died of wounds in France.

Wairns Hermanson, for his nephew, Air Lt. Robert W. Bjornholm, missing in action in the Carolines.

Maj. William J. McCracken will present Air Corps decorations to two Taunton parents: The Air Medal with two Oak Leaf Clusters, posthumously awarded to 2Lt. Ralph G. Cotter, to his father, Gabriel Cotter of Fremont st., and the second Oak Leaf Cluster to the Air Medal awarded to T-Sgt. John D. O'Connell, Jr., a prisoner of war, to his mother, Mrs. Leonora O'Connell of Exeter street.

Wait Bitter Debate On Election Report

One of the most bitter debates in the history of the Massachusetts Legislature was scheduled for today on the report of the joint committee on cities favoring elimination of a special mayoralty election to fill the vacancy caused when Mayor Tobin was elected governor.

Opponents of the proposal, filed by Sen. Charles J. Innes, Back Bay Republican, have labeled it a "Stop Curley" measure and one which would deprive Boston citizens of the right to hold a special election as guaranteed in the city charter.

Under the city charter, a special election must be held on a date designated by the City Council whenever a vacancy occurs through death or resignation of a mayor. The special election must be held within 90 days of the date of death or resignation.

The favorable committee report on the proposal to eliminate the special election because of the regular municipal election in November was given its first reading in the Senate, Friday, but debate was put over until today.

Suffolk County Democrats in the Senate were expected to oppose the measure as a violation of the principle of home rule and an even stormier battle is expected in the House as the result of approval previously having been granted in that branch for special elections to be held in Arlington and Ward 20, Boston, to fill vacancies.

Survivor Tells of Death March

U. S. BOMBER WING HEADQUARTERS, Northern Luzon, Jan. 22 (AP)—Haggard, footsore and hungry for American chow, the first survivor from the Bataan "death march" to join his invading fellow countrymen on Luzon rested today after hiding from Japanese and living on rice for nearly three years.

He is Cpl. Gerald G. Wade of Lewiston, Ida., Army Air Corps mechanic.

"It's too good to be true," Wade declared as he stamped his feet, in borrowed shoes, on the airstrip.

The shoes and a bad stone bruise made him limp. He was chalky-faced from malnutrition and looked 15 years older than his 25 years. But he was happy—and hungry.

He devoured one meal of beef and hash, potatoes, green beans and canned fruit and then finished a second of fried ham with four eggs, six buns, milk and chocolate bars.

Wade told how he and other prisoners who were surrendered to the Japs at Bataan, April 9, 1942, were mistreated and made to march 85 miles to a prison camp.

"They laughed and jeered at us," he said. "Some of them bashed us on the heads with poles as they drove by in trucks.

"They reminded me of underdogs who finally had got the upper hand and didn't know how to act."

He said all he had to eat was a rice cake slipped into his hand by a Filipino boy. "The Japs," he added, "opened our C rations and ate the sugar and chocolate and tossed the rest away. They would not allow us to pick it up.

"The third day after the surrender was the worst of all. We were forced to march 132 steps a minute while the sun beat down on us and the sweat rolled down until our clothes were soaking wet. Again we had no food or water."

Jap officers who enjoyed talking in English told Wade with sadistic glee, "Americans have good autos, good machines, but no fighting spirit. They have too much girls, too much parties."

There were only two rice issues in six days of the march to the O'Donnel concentration camp.

"I got out early from O'Donnel," Wade said.

"The water supply failed. Americans were sent out to fill cans of water. One day the radio operator—call him Gilbert—and I were sent for water outside the barbed wire fence. We took off in broad daylight for the hills. We were resting when Gilbert shouted, 'A Jap is coming!' It turned out to be a Filipino. He took us to a barrio (native village).

"I got malaria. Gilbert was scared so we moved again. My feet were swelling. The Filipinos helped carry me a town where a guerrilla doctor could give me medicine for the malaria, and then they took us back to their own barrio. Gilbert left me there for dead.

"Jap raiders came. I lay in a shack. The people said no Americans were there.

"Through the slits of the bamboo I could see the legs of a Jap sentry. At dusk a Filipino came to the back door and loaded me on a caribao and we left for still another village.

"The new place was one of the headquarters for the people' anti-Japanese army."

He lived with a family there for four months, roamed the hills for a while then lived another year in the lowlands.

He learned his friend was killed by Ganaps, a pro-Japanese Filipino party.

There was no rest and little food. He kept moving.

Wade ended his story with a yawn, "but I'll slepe tonight, my first real sleep in three years."

Jail Holiday

ATLDANTA, Jan. 22 (AP)—Maj. William E. Spence, chief of the Georgia Bureau of Investigation, gave this account of it:

Charlie Hill, 40, picked the lock at the Wilkes County convict camp at night, burglarized homes and stores and then reentered the prison and stored his loot in his locker and under his bunk. He apparently was selling the goods to other convicts.

Hill is serving a 15-year-term for burglary.

New New Deal Seen In Jobs-for-All Bill

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22 (AP)—Sen. James E. Murray of Montana laid the base for a potential new New Deal in the nation's domestic economy today by introducing a sweeping "full employment bill."

Three other Democratic Senators joined him—Wagner of New York, Thomas of Utah and O'Mahoney of Wyoming. All four rated close to the White House.

The bill would establish the right to a job, as a federal policy, for al Americans able to work and looking for work who have finished their schooling and who do not have full-time household responsibilities.

It states that, if full employment cannot be achieved otherwise, it is the federal government's responsibiility "to provide such volume of federal investmetn and expenditure as may be needed" to produce the jobs.

The President would transmit to Congress each year a "national production and employment budget" showing the contemplated regular expenditures of the federal government and the estimated expenditures of business, consumers and state and local governments.

If the total was less than adjudged necessary for full employment (President Roosevelt has estimated the postwar need for 60,000,000 jobs) there would be deemed to be a prospective deficit in the national budget.

The President would then recommend "a general program for ensouraging increased nonfederal expenditures"

As a rule we don't bother our customers for favors. They take such a beating here anyway that there is little point to our pouring salt on an open wound, as it were. But once in a while we do break that rule such as we did last February and are my sinuses in an uproar as a result. At that time a customer friend of ours (what a shop this is—spend a buck and you're our friend, spend two bucks and you're our pal, spend five bucks and you're plain crazy), who is one of America's best perfumers, paid us one of his usual visits, bought what he wanted and in the process saw some men's lotions we had just imported from Mexico. We were rather proud of the stuff. It smelled fine, was packaged attractively in wicker encased bottles and seemed to us to be exactly what the growing boy needed to properly annoint himself. Patsy sampled a bottle in that terrible intricate and slightly ridiculous way all professional parfumers affect, gave me a sad look and started to walk away. Now I know nothing about men's cologne, I came up the hard way, but I didn't like the sad eye treatment so I pressed him for an opinion whereupon he informed me that when I said the lotion smelled I had told the whole story. I asked him if he had anything better. He said he didn't but that if and when he got hold of "some really fine essences" he would make me up a "small batch." Well, I thought it was the usual brush off but damme if he didn't remember. The "small batch" arrived a few days ago. I don't know what a big batch would be like but this shipment is so small we have had to move most of our other inventory out on the street just to make room for it. We have hundreds of bottles (8 oz.) of this glorious scent and my guess is I and my staff will have to take it in our coffee for at least the next twenty years unless, of course, you come to our rescue with an order. We are in such desperate plight, in fact, that we have decided to price this cologne fairly (2.40 includes tax and parcel post) which in itself is some milestone or other. We must get rid of this shipment fast not only because we need the room but because it has completely demoralized my boys—for a week now Henry has been combing his hair straight up in back and Charlie, my tailor, keeps calling me Rachel. A couple more days of this boudoir fragrance I tell you and we will have to change all our pajama and underwear labels from "Zareh, Inc." to "Mais Oui."

Social Security Act Extension Proposed

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22 (AP)—The Social Security Board today asked Congress to "correct defects" in the Social Security Act to make it "an even stronger bulwark of social stability, ecoomic progress and free enterprise."

Topping the board's recommendations was an extension of the unemployment insurance system to 15,000,000 to 20,000,000 presently excluded workers, and of the old-age and survivors insurance program to $20,000,000 to 25,000,000 additional employes and self-employed persons.

Chairman Arthur J. Altmeyer said the board regards these extensions as the major defect of the two social insurance programs.

The board also asked for the setting up of a system of disability and sickness insurance, saying that an average og 7,000,000 persons are sick or disabled on an average day, with an annual wage loss of $3,000,000,000 to $4,000,000,000.

"Our country stands almost alone among the great nations of the world in failing to protect the great majority of wage-earners against incapacity of nonoccupational origin," the board told Congress.

Most of the recommended changes could be effected by the states, but some federal legislation would be necessary.

In addition to extending coverage to persons employed by small firms, farm workers, employes of state and local governments and others not now included, the board's recommendations included:

Increase in maximum weekly benefits to $25, including dependents' allowances, to make benefits cover one-half of the wage loss of unemployment.

Increase duration of benefits to 26 weeks.

The board renewed previous recommendations for a system of insurance for medical and hospital care.

Mother Puzzled By Infant Slaying

COLORADO SPRINGS, Col. (INS)—Held in the Colorado Springs jail on a charge of beating to death her 3-year-old daughter, Mrs. Zohy Palmer, 34, declared "I don't know how I could have done it." Mrs. Palmer is the wife of an American Army private now fighting in Germany and expectant mother of a fourth child.

FRANCE TO RULE TRADE

PARIS (AP)—The French government intends to maintain strict supervision over foreign trade currency exchange for several years after the war, Finance Minister Rene Pleven said here.

18-Month Limit On AEF Duty?

SOMEWHERE IN THE MARIANAS, Jan. 21 (delayed) (via Navy radio) (AP)—A limit of 18 months overseas service for one tour was advocated by Rep. John E. Fogarty of Harmony, R. I., who temporarily gave up his seat in Congress to eat, sleep and work with enlisted men here.

"The thing uppermost in the minds of the men with whom I worked and discussed the overseas problems is 'when will we get home?'" Fogarty said.

Nazis Claim U-boats Sink 9 Allied Ships

LONDON, Jan. 22 (AP)—The German high command claimed today the sinking of six ships in convoys and three corvettes in Atlantic U-boat warfare. The ships aggregated 31,000 gross registered tons, the communique said. It gave no dates.

Navy May Hold War Officers

WASHINGTON, Jan 22 (AP) —The Navy will send to Congress soon the first installment of a postwar legislative program designed to keep the United States in the first rank of world sea powers.

Congressional sources disclosed today that some of the postwar Navy's blueprint will be working its way through Congress by mid-year.

First probably will be legislation intended to keep in the peacetime Navy many of the reserve officers who have been on active duty during the war.

Veterans' Friend

By JAMES F. McENANEY

Q—I have a son who is about to enlist in the Navy. Will you please tell me if I will receive $50 a month allotment, as he is my only child. I am a widow? E. M. M., Weymouth.

A—If you are chiefly dependent upon your son for support at present, he may make application for an allotment of $50 monthly. If he is secondary support, you may receive $37. It depends on your present income.

Q—I am a resident of Brookline and would appreciate it if you would furnish me the address of the local veterans' information and advice office. J. M., Brookline.

A—Inquiries requesting information or assistance for Brookline veterans should be directed to Veterans' Advisory Council, Town Hall. John T. Connor is executive secretary.

Q—I was honorably discharged from the Army in May, 1943, after eight months' service. I have since joined the State Guard. Is there any ribbon or insignia that I might wear on the Guard uniform to show I am an ex-soldier of World War II? E. H., Cambridge.

A—The War Department is preparing a service ribbon for honorably discharged veterans of World War II, which may be worn on a uniform or veteran organization uniform. However, they may not be ready for issue for several months, according to latest reports.

Q—I was discharged from the Navy about a year ago because of "unaptitude." I don't know what type of discharge this is and whether honorable or not. I feel ashamed when asked about my discharge, when seeking a job. I would appreciate it if you could enlighten me on this. Also, am I entitled to seek disability pension, and to apply for a skilled training course, sponsored by the government? I received $300 mustering-out pay. G. E. S., Cambridge.

A—If you received $300 mustering-out pay, your discharge must have been given under honorable conditions. Term "unaptitude" means that you were unable to adapt yourself to Navy service. Perhaps it was because of illness developed while serving. You are entitled to apply for pension through the Veterans' Administration, Federal Building, Boston. You can also obtain information relative to vocational training or educational problems.

Q—I have a friend who has been discharged from the Navy as undesirable since April of last year. Is there any possibility that he may be re-inducted into Navy or Army? P. C., Somerville.

A—Navy states he would not be accepted by them due to discharge. Army might not accept him for induction, although subject to be called if discharge was other than dishonorable.

Questions submitted to Veterans' Friend Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston 6, Mass., will be answered in this daily column.

Hub Starts First 1945 Paper Drive

With city trucks making collections from homes and stores in Wards 1 through 5, Boston's first waste paper salvage drive for 1945 got under way today.

The drive will continue tomorrow with pickups in Wards 6 to 10; Wednesday, 11 to 14; Thursday, 15 to 18, and Friday, 19 to 22.

Salvage Director Hyland urged storekeepers and householders to have their waste paper bundled and out on curbstones early on the day of collection in their respective districts.

"During earlier paper salvage drives," Hyland said, "hundreds of persons have telephoned to salvage headquarters asking when collections were to be made in their neighborhood. In most cases collections had already been made!

"Although the newspapers have carried daily collection schedules and our schoolboy paper troopers have distributed instruction sheets to 200,000 homes, there are still many people who either ignore what is printed or pay no attention.

"Our military leaders and the War Production Board are continually pleading with salvage committees to get in more scrap paper because of the critical shortage.

"Boston has a chance to show what it can do to meet the emergency this week. I know we shall not fail."

WMC Labor Ceiling Now Effective Here

Designed to aid war production, the War Manpower Commission's order limiting the number of workers on the payrolls of 33,000 Greater Boston employers became effective today.

Maximum number of workers any employer can retain after today is the number he employed Aug. 1, 1944. The labor ceiling affects all firms, even those hiring less than eight workers.

End the War VICTORIOUSLY
Make the Peace PERMANENTLY
Bring Our Boys Home PROMPTLY

DON'T SLIGHT OUR COUNTRY'S FLAG

ALL OVER the world thousands of American boys—your son, perhaps; or your brother's son or your neighbor's son—are dying for the Stars and Stripes.

All over the world men and women of all races and nationalities are looking gratefully upon the Stars and Stripes as the deathless symbol of freedom and liberty.

All over the world the oppressed and downtrodden are lifting up their aching hands and sorrowing hearts to the Stars and Stripes as the sole surviving beacon of hope in this dark and dismal age of Totalitarianism.

BUT HERE IN BOSTON—IN FACT, ALMOST IN THE SHADOW OF THE CRADLE OF LIBERTY—THE COMMITTEE ON EDUCATION OF THE MASSACHUSETTS LEGISLATURE IS SERIOUSLY CONSIDERING AN AMAZINGLY INCONSISTENT COURSE OF ACTION WHICH CANNOT FAIL TO BE WIDELY INTERPRETED IN EVERY LAND AND COUNTRY AS AN UTTERLY UNDESERVED AND UNWARRANTED AFFRONT TO THE STARS AND STRIPES.

Mr. Julius E. Warren, whom the Commonwealth has honored with the important office of Commissioner of Education, is making the tragic mistake of proposing that the Legislature abolish the provenly necessary law requiring school children to salute the American flag.

And, in the very midst of the most horrible war America has ever known, the Committee on Education is giving ear to the extremely short-sighted and thoroughly regrettable suggestion.

REP. DAVID M. CLEARY of Charlestown, commander of the Suffolk County Council, Veterans of Foreign Wars, has rightly said:

"Such an action STRIKES DIRECTLY AT OUR WAR EFFORT by its lack of respect for our flag and gives pacificists and isolationists a chance to back up their play.

"Certainly it is not asking much of our children to salute the flag as a symbol of the American ideals FOR WHICH EVEN NOW OUR BOYS ARE FIGHTING AND DYING."

State Commander Thomas F. Mackey, speaking for more than sixty thousand veterans of the two World Wars, has similarly denounced Mr. Warren's untimely move.

"As usual, the opposition to the patriotic Flag Salute Law comes from the same sources which have always opposed it," Commander Mackey declares.

"Their opposition to this law is particularly bad today, when the nation is in the midst of war, and the ideals of patriotism SHOULD BE INSTILLED MORE THAN EVER IN OUR CHILDREN."

EVERY TIME an American boy is wounded at sea or on a battlefield the flag's stripes are redder.

Every time an American boy, determined to end this cruel war and bring back peace and order to the world, moves against the enemy the flag's bars and stars are whiter.

Every time an American boy goes to his death, confident that he has given his all for a just cause, the flag's field is bluer.

Therefore, the Americans who salute Old Glory ALSO SALUTE EVERY MAN IN BATTLE, EVERY MAN IN A MILITARY HOSPITAL, EVERY MAN IN A SOLDIER'S GRAVE.

We cannot repeal our Flag Salute Law without slighting the living and dead in the armed forces of our country.

We must keep this truly American legislation.

Thus, and only thus, can we keep faith with our fighting sons.

QUERIES FROM CLIENTS: Q—When were the following comic strips popular? 1—Lulu and Leander? 2—Coldfeeto the Monk? 3—The Hallroom Boys?

A—Not familiar with No. 1. No. 2—Was popular around 1907 and I believe was titled Groucho the Monk. No. 3—Was one of the most popular strips of all time. Was still going around 1917 as a comic strip, a vaudeville sketch and a movie series, Ed Flanagan, the father of the film actor Dennis O'Keefe, played with Neely Edwards in the "Hallroom Boys" vaudeville sketch . . . Q—What makes you think height is so important to a basketball player? It really isn't much advantage. A—Don't talk that way, young fellow. The teams that have the tallest players always win in the most games. There should be two classes in basketball. Teams with all members under six feet and teams with players all six or over.

Another is the beautiful Maureen O'Hara, a fine actress and a wonderful woman she is. Still another is Fiske O'Hara. When he sings the nightingales grow jealous. ANOTHER ARGUMENT: Many subscribers argue that members of the U. S. Merchant Marine should not enjoy post-war benefits equal to members of the armed forces because they are currently enjoying very high wages. There may be something to that angle. Still don't you think the Merchant Marine lads, despite their high pay, should rate medical treatment at military hospitals and some kind of a postwar pension. Isn't it a little ridiculous to class these men as "civilians" and to say they are not helping to "fight the war." Sailing the high seas on vessels likely to be sunk or bombed at any time is no picnic.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Copyright, 1945, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

CHICAGO, Jan. 22—The letter written by Joseph Padway, general counsel of the American Federation of Labor, to George Scalise, following the public denunciation of Scalise, contains some important points of conflict with Padway's verbal statements to me.

Westbrook Pegler

Scalise subsequently was convicted of extortion by the State of New York and sentenced to prison. He was president of the Building Service Employees' Union and his official roster was infested with ex-convicts and notorious New York and Chicago gunmen, some of them members of the old Capone mob.

On one occasion Scalise rallied a party of them in Miami and took them on a joy ride to Cuba, presumably at the expense of the scrubwomen, janitors, elevator operators and window washers who had been delivered into his power by the Roosevelt Administration.

PADWAY, who is an esteemed friend of Roosevelt, for years has been looked upon as a spokesman for American labor, and in this role was sent to England by Mr. Roosevelt in company with Dan Tobin of the Teamsters' Union.

Padway actually is not what I call a labor man, but just a smart lawyer specializing in labor law. He has an enormous practice, and, like any other lawyer, he charges money for his work.

In the original Scalise expose these dispatches reported that Padway and William Green, president of the A. F. of L., had endorsed a petition at the Department of Justice in which Scalise prayed Roosevelt to restore those rights of citizenship which had been automatically suspended when he was sent to prison as a youth.

Padway denied that he had supported the petition and said he had merely told representatives of the department that, as far as he knew, Scalise was leading an upright life.

He admitted that he received $1000 from Scalise and said this was his pay for drawing a new constitution.

When I remarked to Padway that this $1000 was easy picking for a leader of the working man and that the existing constitution of the Scalise outfit contained a lot of high school ritualistic nonsense, he said this one wasn't his work. Scalise had never put the Padway constitution into effect.

It may be true that Padway did get up a constitution for Scalise to justify his $1000 fee. In fact, after William McFettridge, the new president, by actual risk of his life, threw some of the worst gangsters out and got possession of the files, an unused constitution was discovered among the papers.

NOW JUST HOW far did Padway go for Scalise? He told me he just said Scalise was going straight as far as he knew.

But in his letter to Scalise, expressing undying friendship, he said he and President Green had arranged to confer with Robert Jackson, the attorney general, regarding the petition, and added: "I am going to support your application for restoration of citizenship with all the power at my command."

The union was literally infested with low underworld gangsters and they were robbing not only the unfortunate members but employers, too, and much of that money went for high life in Miami, including wine, women and gambling at the horse and dog tracks.

Padway would seem to have had opportunity to size up these people and their way of living because he, too, was in the habit of going to Florida and he is a smart fellow who knows a gorilla as well as the next man.

BUT, IF we grant that Padway didn't know all this, then what right had this man, professing to be a spokesman of labor, to lend that prestige to the petition of a man whom he had not taken the trouble to investigate?

Wasn't that his duty not only as a citizen and an officer of the court but as a spokesman of the A. F. of L.?

The workers and the honest officials of this union got no help from either Padway or Green in their desperate and dangerous fight against the criminal underworld.

The help came from Tom Dewey and these dispatches and both Dewey and I were denounced as labor baiters.

It is not up to me to save the A. F. of L., but I do know that some of its honest officials are discouraged and terribly afraid of the future.

Hollywood Today

By Louella O. Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 22—You'll see Mervyn Le Roy on the Warner lot, and very soon. "The Fountainhead," by Ayn Rand, is the attractive bait that brings him there to direct it before he starts, "The Robe," in August for Frank Ross. That's big news, my friends. The Rand novel is hot property.

So delighted is Jack Warner that Mervyn has consented to direct this popular best selling novel that plans have been made to cast Barbara Stanwyck and Humphrey Bogart and other important stars in the top roles. Bogie, in Ohio now, a house guest of Louis Bromfield, and Barbara in New York will hear of their assignments first through this column. Henry Blanke, one of Hollywood's top producers, will be at the production helm. While Mervyn is on the Warner lot, Frank Ross will be casting "The Robe." There are 172 speaking parts in all. Some job.

SO MUCH DEPENDS on the direction of the delicate, beautiful story of "The Yearling," that great care was taken in the selection of a director. I feel Metro has been very wise in turning the story over to Clarence Brown, who will know how to treat it. He made "The Human Comedy," "National Velvet" and other stories of that type. Dozens of boys 12 years old have been tested for the part of the child who lives on the farm and adopts the deer as his playmate. Skippy Homeier has the inside track and he could do it. Gregory Peck has already been announced as the father, and it's M-G-M's intention to make "The Yearling" one of their 1945 best.

THE DEER in "The Yearling" is as important as any of the actors. The selection of the boy depends on whether the deer likes him and can act with him. Skippy Homeier will spend four or five days with the shy little animal to see if it takes to him. The deer has been raised on the M-G-M lot since it was born. Clarence Brown, the director, and Sydney Franklin, the producer, have insisted there be other tests of boys made, but it is my opinion Skippy will get the part.

WALLACE BEERY and his former wife, Rita, are talking over a reconciliation and it looks very promising. They lunched together several times and if you know Wally or Rita you know the old flame never really died for either of them. Of course, Rita married again (Al Foight was the gentleman's name), but they were divorced several years ago. Wally, also, was at one time romantically inclined toward Mrs. Lorraine Robinson. But she told me herself they would never be married because he still cared for Rita. Not long ago Rita was rumored engaged to Col. Al Bodie, but that's all over. In fact, everything points to a remarriage for the Beerys.

SUSAN PETERS arrived home Saturday from San Diego in an ambulance and was taken to Cedars of Lebanon Hospital. She has been greatly encouraged by friends who are urging her to start a new career in radio since it will be a long time before she will be well enough to face cameras. She could do radio from a wheelchair. One of our best-known radio singers sings all her songs sitting in a wheelchair, and she's a great favorite. Susie won't be able to walk for months and she's such a fine little actress she would be a definite asset to radio.

* * *

IF IT'S TRUE Jennifer Jones and Robert Walker have decided not to seek divorce because of their children, then I say they are wise young people, indeed. Lately Bob and Jennifer have had several serious talks about their marriage and at this writing expect to leave it at a separation and not get a divorce for some time, if ever.

* * *

CHATTER IN HOLLYWOOD: I know the many friends of Roland Drew are going to be interested to hear about his coming marriage to Dorothy Dearing, business woman and importer. Roland, in silent days, played opposite such stars as Dolores Del Rio and Gloria Swanson. Later, during the talkies, he has been prominent as a character actor on the screen and in radio. No date has been set for the marriage. Roland, too, has embarked in business, and that is where he met his bride-to-be, who is a charming young lady.

* * *

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD COLLECTED AT RANDOM: Ethel Merman is expecting her second child this summer; Ann Sothern's sister, Bonnie Lake, is in the hospital. She had the same operation Paulette Goddard underwent, and she, too, lost her baby. On Feb. 20 Gloria Vanderbilt becomes of age and inherits some $4,300,000. Pat Di Cicco, who is here, says as soon as Gloria finishes signing papers she'll be out here, sorry to hear Andrea Leeds, former motion picture star and now the wife of Bob Howard of the "Seabiscuit" Howards, underwent a serious operation earlier in the week; Cliff Henderson is finding Jeannie Crain very attractive; Lt. Pat O'Daniel wires and says: "There's no truth to the story of my engagement to Barbara Perry, motion picture actress and dancer." Sorry.. We had to believe the lady; Greta Garbo has sold her home and has told close friends that she's going to live permanently in New York. She never did like our town, anyway.

* * *

AL JOLSON, who remains very ill, will not be moved to New York for several weeks. Modern Screen celebrated its 15th birthday on the M-G-M lot, a courtesy for M-G-M's 20-year special issue. Hedy Lamarr, who had finished work for the day, was among the early arrivals at the cocktail party. She says she's hoping her baby will be twins. Judy Garland, will wed Vincente Minelli in July.

Broadway . . . By Dorothy Kilgallen

NEW YORK, Jan. 22—A true life story as pathetic—and corny—as any ballad ever sung by a warbling waiter in the "Face on the Bar Room Floor" era is being enacted in the heart of the Broadway entertainment zone during this winter season of 1945.

The snow falls, the wind that howls through the cracks in a tenement window is damply chill, the nights are long and dark.

Peggy Hopkins

And a local comedian who makes more than $1000 a week permits his aged, ailing mother to live in abject poverty, while he squanders money like a foolish millionaire on drink and showgirls . . . Ed Wynn is laid up with intestinal flu . . . Peggy Hopkins Joyce's new honey is a big cola executive . . . New Yorkers who visited the livery stables Sunday, bent on renting horse-drawn sleighs, were told they could have the sleighs, certainly—but they'd have to supply their own horses. Shortage of nags, too?

THE LINDY'S SET hears that Noel Toy, the Chinese glamor girl, has started a "Mink Coat for Toy Fund" in San Francisco. The rumor is she has both sleeves already . . . A handsome movie star and a beautiful dancer are tempting tattlers with their off-the-record romance . . . Friends report that Monte Proser will turn over the management of his Copacabana to another Broadwayite and trek to Hollywood to produce pictures. This would also, by a strange coincidence, bring him 3000 miles nearer to Jane Ball, whom he would like to marry . . . Main Stem historians with long, long memories giggle that Bert Wheeler's ex-wife, Sally Hayes, got so excited at her most recent wedding she told reporters it was her fourth. The record-straighteners say it was her fifth; she forgot to mention Louis Lindsay, brother of actress Sharon Lynne . . . Another Dorsey-Sinatra situation is cooking. Tommy is rumored very upset over grapevinings that Freddie Stewart, his tenor discovery, will be quitting the band soon . . . Joy Hodges was a sensation at Hallaron Hospital—did her act in a high-necked dress.

GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS who are worrying about the current shortage of workers in vital war industries would do well to see that a best-seller I have just finished reading gets into the hands of as many Americans as possible as quickly as possible. The book is "Where Away," the story of the U. S. cruiser Marblehead, written by Isabel Leighton and George Sessions Perry. It is, first of all, a great adventure story, far more thrilling than any sea story I can think of in the whole realm of fiction, far more heart-warming than many a tale of love. But beyond that it is a graphic account of how desperately American fighting men need weapons and of the great use to which they put those they get.

FRIENDS OF Donna Reed, the cinema ingenue, insist she'll waltz down the aisle with her agent, Tony Owen, when her divorce becomes final . . . Dave Wolper and Eddie Davis (the writer fellow) have kissed and made up . . . Andre Kolstelanetz on a USO tour in the CBI area, is traveling in three Liberator bombers with his 40-piece orchestra. The GI upright piano that flies with the musicians is hoisted into the bomb bay . . . The daughter of a famous illustrator has been told never to darken his door again—and under the most melodramatic circumstances.

Boston After Dark

MONDAY MUSINGS: Bob Hope and Jerry Colonna have honors awaiting them in Boston which can't be described in advance of their appearance here Wednesday at the Boston Garden . . . Mrs. Hope, the former Dolores Reed, will not be in Boston when her famous husband keeps his memorable date with 20,000 paying guests (in aid of hospitalized veterans) . . . Dolores and one of the Hope children will get only as far as New York in a transcontinental trek that had Boston as its objective . . . Lack of positive reservations is the check-rein on their tour . . . After Bob's appearance at the Garden, the Hopes will have a long awaited vacation together in Florida.

RISE STEVENS' personal appearance at Symphony Hall will take place Feb. 27, instead of the 7th, as printed . . . Cornelia Otis Skinner is getting $1000 a week for her chore of acting in "The Searching Wind" . . . Impressive as that salary is, Miss Skinner could earn at least five times that amount (under current conditions) as the actor-author of her famous "monograms" with herself unsupported star . . . And that steers us into one of our familiar "that reminds me of—"

IN 1922, a gangling but attractive young lady signed a long name (Cornelia Otis Skinner) to the paysheet of a certain Sam H. Harris production which, in defiance of a notable lack of enthusiasm on the part of the public, continued to occupy the stage of the Fulton Theater . . . It was her first Broadway show . . . Margaret Lawrence was the star . . . A sterling character actor, then unknown to Hollywood, by the name of Edward Arnold was playing a part in that opus . . . So was Effie Shannon . . . So, too, was a promising young leading man with a famous Massachusetts name, Lodge . . . Well, the owner of that name, John Lodge, didn't go very far in the theater.

MISS SHANNON and Mr. Arnold ended as high-priced stars . . . But Miss Skinner did better than any of her company . . . Her beginner's salary—and a generous one it was with considerable deference being paid her right to the name of Skinner—was $150 a week . . . One of the present "names" in the theater, Cornelia can step out of a theatrical company and win herself ten times her original salary at any time . . . As an actress, that is.

AS AUTHOR of her "monograms," and as co-author of "Our Hearts Were Young and Gay," Cornelia Otis Skinner has established a standard salary in Hollywood of $2500 a week . . . So don't be disheartened, youngsters, if at first you don't succeed in trying to crash the theatrical business . . . For after that first engagement in "In Her Arms," with John Lodge, Effie Shannon, Edward Arnold et al, Miss Skinner didn't get a paying job in the theater for nearly three years.

★ ★ ★

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY: Lena's (restaurant) in Massachusetts ave. had an attendance early this morning which would have read like a roster of the theatrical companies playing in Boston . . . The after-midnight crowd divides its population, apparently, between Lena's and Ruby Foo's Den . . . Gilbert Johnson, managing director of the Myles Standish, is reporting for action on his home grounds after a long illness . . . A deal is in the making whereby the town's most attractive musical act, Noble and King, will become more important than they currently are (and currently they are stars).

Washington Scene

By George Dixon

(Distributed by King Features Synd., Inc. Reproduction prohibited.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22—I just cannot get my mind off the disclosure that Secretary of State Stettinius has turned movie actor.

E. Stettinius

It plagues me because I keep thinking up the darndest scenes in which he could perform. The picture that stirs my tortured imagination oftenest is Mr. Stettinius slapping the British ambassador in the kisser with a custard pie.

There is practically no excuse for this because, so far as I could ascertain, the Secretary of State does not contemplate any comedy roles—not even bedroom farce in which the actor tries to convince the suspicious husband he is only the plumber.

His film debut will be a dramatization of the Dumbarton Oaks plan for world security. In this epic of the silver screen he will portray a character named Edward R. Stettinius.

Before being given his fat part, however, he had to take a screen test just like any other movie hopeful, including Rin-Tin-Tin. You will be glad to know he was pronounced photogenic.

Incidentally, I would like to get my hands on the party who thought up that word "photogenic." I never heard it until a few years ago but now it's blatted by everybody who can pronounce a word longer than "C-A-T." Today it seems to be the final test of one's worth. If your're not photogenic you might as well hang yourself—and I think I will.

My understanding is that Mr. Stettinius acted out a few of the more dramatic scenes from the movie and was assured he was right on the beam. I do not know what would happened if he had stepped, because I cannot help but imagine the scene between Secretary Stettinius and Secretary Stalin.

"Baby, it don't look right on you."

I WONDER how other members of the acting profession feel about Mr. Stettinius being jumped to stardom in his first picture. I wouldn't mind betting there will be a lot of snide cracks that he got it through "pull."

I understand there will be no love interest in the film, which practically knocks it in the head so far as I am concerned, because I just revel in mush. The least they could do is work in a song number, with a beautiful dame gazing languorously at Stettinius while she moans: "Just a hug and kiss at partin'

"Neath the oaks at old Dumbarton."

★ ★ ★

BUT THERE is one scene they simply must include. It calls for a medium shot of Mr. Stettinius looking stern and uncompromising to show he is conscious of a great duty, but at the same time petting a dog to prove he is human beneath it all.

Maybe they could borrow Fala for the dog role—if he isn't too engrossed with his matrimonial affairs, as revealed by Mrs. Roosevelt the other day!

★ ★ ★

INCIDENTALLY, I decline to get worked up about Fala's amours. My goodness, if this keeps up we'll have the romantic beast pouring out his soul for the love confessions magazines!

★ ★ ★

FURTHERMORE, when you come right down to it, whose business is it except Fala's?—and possibly the lady dog upon whom he has bestowed his affections?

★ ★ ★

I JUST KNOW I'm going to be kicking myself later tonight over the Stettinius movie. I'll get home and think of a million things I should have put in the picture like the Secretary of State and the Russian ambassador sneaking each other for snoes, only to learn in the final denouement that they are both Cavendish of the British Secret Service.

★ ★ ★

MR. CHARLES PERKINS, who has the most peculiar reading habits, has been spending his leisure perusing a booklet, "Ways of Handling Production Problems," put out by the War Production Board.

It is hard to understand Mr. Perkins' interest, because the only production problem I ever knew him to face was how to produce a plausible alibi for failing to get home before daybreak.

However, the brochure seems to have him enthralled. Particularly the part in which the WPB reveals how its committee of experts gets its ideas for boosting production in factories. The booklet says:

"The members of the committee get talking and stimulate each other. Sometimes the committee does not know what to recommend, but it reports a problem, thus leading to the solution."

Maybe Mr. Perkins is sound in his choice of literature at that. The picture of the experts sitting around stimulating each other is certainly fascinating.

★ ★ ★

BUT MR. PERKINS really goes into ecstasies over the suggestions for maintaining order and cleanliness in the plants. The committee recommends that manufacturers hold contests, with awards to be given as follows:

"A large carboard pig is hung in the department judged dirtiest, and a small one for 'dishonorable mention' in the second dirtiest department."

★ ★ ★

WRITES MR. PERKINS: "If you are not careful and don't mend your ways, Mr. Dixon, you may come down some morning and find a hippopotamus hanging in your office!"

Star Shine

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 22 — Ann Sothern is what is known as "good company" on the set, easy to get along with. She has a wicker rocker on the set in which she sits and rocks and knits and listens to the phonograph and chats with the players.

The players are currently Judy Garland and John Hodiak, for she is now working in "The Harvey Girls." She plays a dance hall floozy.

Ann Sothern

Although she appears easy and natural on the screen, she studies her job. She goes to such extremes as this:

When she played a "Masie" drink scene, she took into account the fact that "Mazie" was ordinarily a teetotaler, and that the drink was hot, so it could be expected to intoxicate her more quickly than a cold drink would a seasoned drinker. She calculated the size of the slug of whisky which had been poured into the hot toddy, then figured out how many sips she would take so it would be logical for her to be very fuzzy at the end of the scene.

★ ★ ★

HER REAL NAME is Harriet Lake, and she was born in Valley City, N. D., on Jan. 2, 1909. She's five feet, one and a half inches tall, and wears extra high heels. She weighs 115 pounds, has gray eyes, brown hair, and she likes to eat raw meat.

The thing she hates most is to be called "Annie." She also hates guessing games.

She is married to Lt. Robert Sterling, who is in the Air Force. They recently had a baby girl, Patricia Ann.

★ ★ ★

HER ROMANCE with Sterling started when she was making the picture, "Ringside Maisie." George Murphy and Robert Sterling were her leading men in the picture. She knew Murph, but hadn't met Sterling. The wardrobe mistress introduced them on the set, saying, "He's the fellow who wins you in the picture."

Spring Hats Will Be High

By BETTINA BEDWELL

FOLLOW-UP to the heavy hat is the high hat, which is a fashion that is being promoted for spring. Crowns that soar to stratespheric heights can be found in the best millinery designer collections. What Mrs. and Miss America are going to do about these is still in doubt, but they are high fashion, these high hats, and must be reported as such.

Miss Dulin has sketched one just to show you, in case you're interested. This model is said by the experts to be a very young type of high hat. It is made of soft green felt, and is a postillion shape with a high draped crown and narrow brim. It is banded with brown grosgrain ribbon edged with gold squares. A brown veil is draped over the face and under the chin.

One Grand Liquid Cream Foundation

Beauty

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

LIFE WOULD BE PRETTY DULL if we didn't think that somewhere, someone is dreaming of us . . . idealizing our loveliness . . . building up in his mind's eye the greatest world illusion of them all.

If he is away or overseas . . . surely he has created an illusion of your loveliness to comfort and inspire him in trying days and deeds. He is remembering the petal-smoothness of your skin - you - love - to - touch complexion . . . or the delicious twinkle in your dark eyes . . . or the impishness of your smile. And, they all add up to a pretty nice-looking gal in his book. And, when he comes back he'll expect to find you just as sweet as you are.

That's why we gals . . . with or without Big Moment at hand . . . must help make those dreams come true . . . must keep ourselves looking as spiffy and smart as we know how. For all men adore that luminous look of day-long petal freshness. But since not all of us can lay claim to such camellia-like complexion . . . we must resort to cosmetic science's Genie-of-the-Lamp . . . and become a mastering mistress of beauty trickery.

It goes without saying that a foundation is as necessary to make-up as stockings in wintertime . . . so let's dispense with the preliminaries and talk about a foundation of liquid-cream consistency that is a doting mother to every skin.

Actually this liquid cream foundation . . . that tricks up your complexion into instant and astounding beauty with one amazing drop . . . was first created for use in technicolor pictures . . . then modified for street and everyday use at the request of the stars themselves. And, now it can help each and every one of us star in our own personal lives.

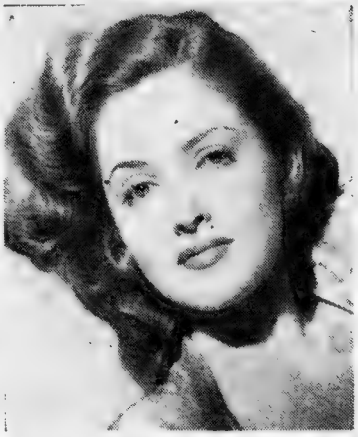
You've probably envied a gal her peaches - and - cream complexion when all the while her skin was satinized with flattering color by this sensational liquid-cream base.

We're especially fond of it because it doesn't give a masked appearance . . . never cakes on the skin nor clogs in the pores. Because it has an oil base . . . it gives that youthful, dewey radiance to the complexion . . . really helps to preserve the skin's natural suppleness as it defies the ravages of dust, wind and weather. Any one of six gorgeous shades will make you lovelier.

For the name of this complexion beautifier, phone the Beauty Dept., LIBerty 4000, or write me, care of the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.



MAKE-UP IS TODAY a subtle art . . . and it takes more than just a "little powder and a little paint" to dramatize a face. One of cosmetic science's most wonderful contributions to that "fountain-of-youth" facial look is the liquid cream foundation discussed today . . . an amazing complexion rejuvenator originally created in Hollywood for the cinema glamor gals at work. Chop Suey Supper A-1 Finale for Sports Party

By MARTHA LEE

IF YOU'RE THINKING of having a sports party, why not a chop suey supper? There's nothing better than a workout in the open to build up an appetite for this filling and tasty dish. Moreover, this type of meal is as easy as can be to serve to a crowd. The chop suey is prepared in advance and the rice takes only about 20 minutes to cook, just about time for you to put the salad together.

The salad on our menu is intended not as an accompaniment to the chop suey, but to serve as a refreshing contrast for dessert. Fruit sherbet would be equally appropriate.

MENU

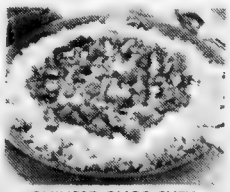
Homemade Chop Suey
Boiled Rice Fried Noodles
Pot of Hot Tea
Mixed Fruit Salad
Orange-Pineapple Dressing
Wafers or Crackers

You may like to have a bowl of chow mein noodles to sprinkle on top of the chop suey, as well as rice to go under it. This makes an attractive serving and provides a bit more in texture, because the noodles are delicate and crunchy. If you prefer chow mein to chop suey, you can omit the rice entirely and serve the meat mixture on the fried noodles.

Chop suey actually means "fine mixture." When expertly made, it is a masterful combination of meat and vegetables, their flavors subtly blended and enhanced by the characteristic seasoning of Chinese or soy sauce.

CHINESE CHOP SUEY

1½ lbs. raw pork, diced
3 tbsp. lard ½ tsp. salt
½ cup finely cut onions
1½ cups diced celery
½ cup water (or liquid from bean sprouts) ½ tsp. pepper
(*) 1 can bean sprouts
3 tbsp. cornstarch
2 tbsp. brown sauce
2 tbsp. soy sauce



CHINESE CHOP SUEY

Cook meat in lard without browning for 30 minutes. Add onions, celery and liquid. Cover and cook slowly until vegetables are done. Drain bean sprouts and add to meat mixture. Heat thoroughly. Mix cornstarch with brown sauce, add pepper and soy sauce. Add to hot mixture, stirring constantly until thick. Serve very hot over boiled rice. Makes 6 servings.

(*)If necessary, the bean sprouts may be omitted and the amounts of celery and onions increased.

There are many different recipes for making this popular dish; the method remains the same, but the ingredients are frequently varied. For example, the recipe given above calls for diced fresh pork; it may be made, however, with beef or veal or a combination of meats. Ordinarily, you might use mixed Chinese vegetables; when they are hard to obtain, we suggest chopped celery and onions, which make a very tasty dish. Mushrooms and green peppers are often added also. Although the bean sprouts are typically included, they are not essential.

FRIED NOODLES

1 pkg. fine or wide noodles
1 tbsp. salt
1 qts. boiling water

Break noodles into 1½-inch pieces. Add the salt to the boiling water, then add the noodles gradually taking care that the boiling does not stop. Cook the noodles uncovered, stirring frequently with a fork until a piece of the noodle rubbed between the fingers is tender—about 5 minutes. Rinse in cold water, then drain thoroughly. Drop by forkfuls into deep fat or oil heated to 390 deg. F. or hot enough to brown a day-old cube of bread in 20 seconds and fry until golden brown.

My Day

By Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, Sunday — Inauguration activities begin the day before inauguration, and so on Friday we had a buffet lunch at the White House for the people who worked at campaign headquarters or in some of the other campaign committees. Then at 3 o'clock I received for an hour, greeting people whom the Democratic National Committee thought would enjoy getting a glimpse of the White House.

At 4 o'clock I was at the Women's National Democratic Club. I went home to greet some grandchildren who were coming down from New York City, and at 7 o'clock I went off to the electors' dinner.

SATURDAY MORNING all the grandchildren—even the youngest, Nina, aged 2—came to the religious services in the east room. I think this service more nearly met the needs of the day than anything else that followed.

At noon we were all on the south portico, the grandchildren down on the steps and the audience out on the lawn, surrounded by snow. The ceremonies were short—shorter than ever before, I think—but very solemn and impressive.

At 1 o'clock we had a very simple buffet lunch for many guests, and at 4:30 the electors were received by the President and myself. At 5 o'clock I had a tea which lasted into late afternoon. At all of these occasions Mrs. Truman received with me.

EVEN DURING the purely social features, one carries a constant sense of the solemnity of an occasion such as this, occurring as it does while we are in the midst of war.

Knowing the constant anxiety which thousands of people are going through day by day, and the tremendous problems that lie ahead of us, one feels the need for dedication to his task on the part of every elected or appointed servant of the people serving in government during this period.

Reds in Race to Rule Germany

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND
Dean of American Foreign Correspondents

MADRID, Jan. 22—The race for Berlin is on again, between Premier Stalin's Red armies and Gen. Eisenhower's Anglo-American warrior hosts.

Notwithstanding the triple alliance, the race is between Stalin's totalitarian Soviet Communism and its aims, and the Roosevelt-Churchill Western individualistic, capitalistic democracy.

It is for the biggest, indeed the first prize in the lottery of five years' war—Germany, keystone in Central Europe, and the political and economic orientation of between 75,000,000 and 80,000,000 Germans.

Germany, even in utter defeat, is the pivot on which the political, economic and social destiny of the continent of Europe will turn. Stalin, with his farsighted vision, realized that fact from the day of Hitler's Stalingrad disaster. London and Washington seem slow to perceive that. Now it is late—perhaps too late.

There are four outstanding causes or reasons that may make this race for Berlin, between the Red armies of the East and the white armies of the West, fateful in the destiny of the people of Europe. They are:

1—America, Britain and Soviet Russia, fighting in common to destroy Hitler and Nazi Germany, are divided in peace and on post-war Europe.

2—The irreconcilable fundamental difference betwen Anglo-American political, economic and social ideals and the totalitarian Communist ideals of Soviet Russia, which President Roosevelt himself characterized as "a dictatorship as absolute as any dictatorship in the world."

3—So far as is known, no agreement exists between Roosevelt, Churchill and Stalin on the occupation of Germany.

4—No agreement exists between them on peace terms to Germany.

Whoever reaches Berlin first will have first place and a dominant voice in dictating the conditions of occupation and terms of peace.

Already Stalin is about 100 miles nearer Berlin than is Eisenhower.

That Churchill, at least, is well aware of this situation was obvious from his two-hour speech in Commons last Tuesday in which he urged the Germans to lay down their arms and capitulate. The Germans are certain to deduce that he wants them to surrender before Stalin gets to Berlin ahead of the western Allies.

Churchill's explanation that "unconditional surrender" did not quite mean what it implied, is being interpreted by the Germans as a weakening note in that demand and contradictory of the Prime Minister's opinion that the demand for unconditional surrender is not prolonging the war.

One can deduce something of the Soviet policy from the Moscow government organ War and Workers, which is quoted as declaring that all former governments and old forms of Europe must be swept away.

WEDDING BELLS chimed in Cambridge for Miss Caroline Weld Dudley who became the bride of Amos L. Taylor of Belmont and Mattapoisett at a small family wedding in Crothers Chapel Saturday afternoon.

Dr. Walter R. Reed of So. Duxbury and Dr. Edwin C. Broome, Jr., of the First Unitarian Church, Belmont, officiated. The bride is a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Elbridge Gerry Dudley of Boston and Orange, N. J., and sister of Thomas Dudley of East Orange who gave her in marriage. Gov. Thomas Dudley of the Massachusetts Bay Colony and Elbridge Gerry, who signed the Declaration of Independence for Massachusetts, are among her ancestors. She is a graduate of Miss Beard's School in Orange and a former member of the Orange Junior League. The newlyweds will make their home in Belmont.

DUE TO the illness of Dorothy Crawford, guest artist scheduled for the next Morning of Diversion, Jan. 31, Mrs. Wilham Dana Orcutt will share with the group her interesting lecture on Italian Renaissance. The lecture is illustrated with slides showing the development of the country, the many facets of Leonardo da Vinci's extraordinary genius, and is based on Mrs. Orcutt's years of study and research in museums, libraries and monasteries in Italy.

Coffee will be served as usual before the lecture in N. E. Mutual Hall with junior hostesses Mrs. Walter I. Badger, Rebekah Hobbs, Louise Condit, Lavinia Sabine, Mrs. George N. Proctor 3d, Mrs. Lawrence Percival and Mrs. Harold Suttle.

Black Market Cash Shown At Trial of 16 in France

PARIS, Jan. 22 (AP)—Large bundles of French currency, handfuls of money orders and a long list of looted U. S. Army supplies were exhibited today as courts martial trying railway battalion cases heard evidence against 16 enlisted men charged with diverting supplies en route to the front into black market channels.

Cigarets figured in the testimony as the principal loot sought by black market operators contacting railway battalion men in French cafes, but quantities of chewing tobacco, canned turkey, hams, coffee, evaporated milk, bacon and even cloth were taken, the courts were told.

According to the testimony, the French currency and American money orders introduced in evidence were taken from various accused men when arrested.

The 16 defendants being tried in two courts are all members of the 716th railway operating battalion. Testimony in both courts is similar.

In the first group are Pvt. Robert Charles Fursyth, T-5 Dwight J. Curtis, T5 Harold J. Ainsworth, T5 Rudolph J. Migel, Pvt. Charles H. Isham and PFC Sam Ferro, Jr.

The other court is trying Pvt John W. Morrison, Jr., T4 Grady W. Whatley, Pvt. Alton C. Whitt, T5 Leo C. Mesmer, Pvt. James T. Melton, Sgt. Raymond E. Blackburn, Pvt. Edward H. Humphrey, T5 Charles E. McCoy, T4 Joe M. Mashburn and Sgt. Ernest O. Waters.

bourg gap and across the Rhine just north of Strasbourg seemed to lack punch. They were being held by the U. S. Seventh Army after initial gains which, for the moment, were left unexploited.

2—The Germans were getting out of the flattened Ardennes bulge in virtually complete abandonment of a 15 to 20-mile flank northwest of Vianden, and heavy troop train movements reported at Bonn reflected the last-minute changes in the Wehrmacht's cross-Rhine line.

That suggested the Germans were going once more over to a mere delaying offensive—reinforcing the line guarding the Ruhr and Rhineland and great cities like Dusseldorf and Cologne for a stand nearer the Rhine.

3—For the first time, it began to seem likely the Allies would get in the next offensive blow as the Nazi command wavered between demands of the western and eastern fronts.

Where and how soon that blow would fall could not be disclosed.

But Marshal von Rundstedt's hesitancy to hurl his strength into the Strasbourg battle, and his movements in the Ardennes and north to hoard strength suggested clearly he expected Eisenhower to strike soon against the Rhine.

There was little tendency among officers at supreme headquarters to believe victory might be obtained through the drifted snows during the last half of the winter. But there was increasing confidence that with the Russian onslaught tying down German mobility the Allied armies in the west might accomplish a preliminary to victory by winning a springboard position on the Rhine.

Moyne Slayers In Plea to King

CAIRO, Jan. 22 (AP)—A mercy petition addressed to King George VI and Prime Minister Winston Churchill today remained the last hope of life for two young Jewish Nationalists sentenced to die for the assassination of Lord Moyne, British diplomat.

The pair—Eliahou Bet Souri and Eliahou Hakim—were informed this morning that their petitions for clemency had been denied by the grand mufti.

COLONIAL — "THE SEARCHING WIND," Herman Shumlin's production of the latest Lillian Hellman play, comes here for two weeks with Cornelia Otis Skinner, Dennis King and Dudley Digges heading the original cast following a Broadway run extending from last April to the past Saturday night. Barbara O'Neil is featured. The story deals with 20 years in the lives of an American diplomat and the two women he loves. The author hits sharply at appeasement in the play.

PLYMOUTH — "HOPE FOR THE BEST," the new comedy by William McCleery starring Franchot Tone and Jane Wyatt, will be presented locally for two weeks by Jean Dalrymple and Marc Connelly. Connelly also directed the play; settings by Motley.

SHUBERT—"CATHERINE WAS GREAT," with Mae West reigning Russia's incandescent queen of hearts, is the lavish Mike Todd spectacle which has enjoyed a healthy run in New York. Roy Hargrave has staged the play; Howard Bay designed the production. Action is punctuated by incidental choral and native Russian instrumental music.

Saturday

OPERA HOUSE— "CARMEN" will be the Boston Grand Opera Company's opening night performance in its return week engagement. Among the singers announced are Alexander Sved, Jennie Tourel, Leonora Corona, Armand Tokatyan and Dorothy Kirsten.

Continuing

WILBUR—"STAR IN THE WINDOW," the Choate-Elkins production of the new comedy about a WAC meeting adjustments to civilian living again. Peggy Conklin plays the lead. Second and final week.

January 31

WILBUR — "SIGNATURE" Elizabeth McFaddin's new psychological thriller presents Paul Huber, Marjorie Lord, Joel Lazel and others in a story about an 1856 murder of a Virginia farmer boy.

Hargrave directing; Richard Skinner and Dorothy Willard producing.

February 5

COLONIAL—"FOOLISH NOTION," starring Tallulah Bankhead, will be the fifth of Philip Barry's plays to be produced by The Theater Guild. Henry Hull and Donald Cook are featured. The play is being directed by John C. Wilson as established producer.

February 6

PLYMOUTH—"THE CLOVER RING," the Hatta Stoddard production of Justin Sturm's new comedy is now in rehearsal under Gerald Savory's direction with Frances Reid, Raymond Greenleaf, Ian Gibson, Russell Gaige and Frank Tweddell supporting the starring Philip Merrivale.

February 12

OPERA HOUSE—"THE MERRY WIDOW," the operetta revival in a return engagement with Monica Moore and Frank Melton.

February 13

WILBUR—"BELLA'S GOT A FELLA," which is the new title of the Arthur Kober comedy which Michael Todd is producing up to go into rehearsal today under Elmer Rice's direction. First called "My Dear Bella," the play, a comedy upon a series of stories by Kober appearing in the New Yorker.

February 11

PILATES DAUGHTER HALL — "PILATE'S DAUGHTER," America's oldest Passion Play, is to be given here for two performances weekly through March 28 at the Mosque Hall auditorium in Newton. N. E. MUTUAL HALL SCHOOL FOR SCANDAL," the Theatre Guild-American Theatre Society's revival of Sheridan's comedy with Helen Hayes as Lady Teazle and Richard Basehart as Sir Peter.

February 19

SHUBERT—"TAKE OF THE MOON," a legend with music by Howard Richard Dietz and William Berney will be the fourth play in the subscription series presented by The Theater Guild and the American Theater Society. Cheryl Crawford and Hart Jerad cast. Robert E. Perry will direct; production is to be supervised by Jo Mielziner.

by IZZY ORT

Wow! Wot a time me and the boys had at the Parker House da other night at the testimonial dinner for Senator Charles L. Taylor. He sure has got a big following. The Parker House Ballroom was packed tighter than the proverbial sardine can, and there were plenty of the Senator's friends who couldn't git inside da hall. Ya couldn't get another seat for shove nor money. Guests included the Hoooorable Governor Tobin, Acting Mayor Kerrigan, Billy Hurley, Roy Green, and others of the City Council. Everybody had one swell time but most of the boys had to rush out to catch the Federal Express for the big inauguration . . . Fokes, let's not forget the way the news is comin' in, especially the way our boys is handlin' those Huns. Let's do all we can here to help 'em out over there—buy war bonds, avoid bein' absent from defense work, give to the blood bank, avoid inflation and stay out of the black market, jess to mention a few of the many things we kin do here on the home front to help the boys in the foxholes . . . And now, if you fokes don't mind, I'd like to take a few lines to remind you all that there's music and dancin' from noon till closin' in the Essex St. Grille. Advt.

Wounded Face Purple Heart Ban

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22—Many veterans mained while fighting overseas will never receive the Purple Heart, returned disabled men revealed today, because the honor is given by the War Dept. only when the victim has been injured by a hostile act of the enemy.

American soldiers wounded—as some have been—by bombs mistakenly dropped by our planes cannot receive the Purple Heart.

Soldiers caught in an Allied barrage or injured by contact with an Allied mine or hand grenade cannot receive the Purple Heart.

Nor can the soldier who, spending days in a front-line foxhole, suffers trench foot so severely as to require amputation.

Army regulations provide that the Purple Heart may be awarded only to persons "wounded in action against an enemy of the United States, or as a direct result of an act of such enemy, providing such wounds necessitated treatment by a medical officer."

The regulation defines a wound as "an injury to any part of the body from an outside source, element, or agent sustained as a result of an enemy or while in action in face of the enemy."

DOUBLE TROUBLE

Yes! America Has Its Traitors Too

By AUSTEN LAKE

YES! AMERICA HAS ITS TRAITORS TOO! There are others beside the weasel-souled, wasp-minded renegade named William Curtis Colpaugh of Niantic, Ct., the sabateur now waiting probable death-sentence after being landed from a Nazi submarine on the coast of Maine.

Austen Lake

The writer recalls how, for morbid amusement, our soldiers in the combat lines of France often tuned the dials of captured German radio sets to Axis propaganda frequencies. We have no laws against listening to the enemy. No Gestapo thug waited to hawl them off to the SS pokey or batter them blue! Neither did our radio experts jam enemy channels with sound like giant pig-grunts or hen squawks. If a U. S. soldier wanted to hear these bilious burbles it was okay with Eisenhower. The chief didn't worry about our guys getting infected with Fascist poisons.

So sometimes we'd catch Jane Anderson's chesty contralto from Berlin. Or the sleepy, snore-tones of Robert H. Best, the ex-newspaperman. Or the languid drawl of Constance Drexel, a former Philadelphia socialite. Or the flat gulps of Fred Kaltenbach, son of an Iowa butcher. And occasionally there would be other, unidentified accents in Brooklynese or South-in-yo'-mouth—all prating about the bogus beauties and moribund plenty of the noble Nazi. And all blew razzberries at the "warped morality, vulgar decadence and dollar royalty" of their native America. To which our soldiers listened between a giggle and a curse.

THE DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE has a long, complete list of these creatures, who face charges of "treason and conspiracy," for which the penalty may be death. One is a former Navy ensign named Douglas Chandler. Another is a scholarly verse-maker named Ezra Pound. There are others!

The "Marchioness del Cienfuegos"

JANE ANDERSON IS A THRILL-TWISTED adventuress well known to Boston in Pre-Pearl Harbor days as the self-styled "Marchioness del Cienfuegos." She lectured to Boston culture societies and wrote for Boston periodicals. She was rated pretty hot stuff and as one Boston lady reporter wrote in the following floral footnote:

"This crystal-minded American girl and her romantic Spanish husband were entranced at first sight." Like a fairytale hero and his lovely princess they were married in the legendary, time-mellowed Cathedral of Seville. Jane tells how she knelt for her marriage vows, a bride in ivory satin with her husband's hereditary jewels and lace mantilla, while clouds of milk-white pigeons fluttered overhead. That day Jane Anderson became Juana del Santissima Trinidad, Marchioness del Cienfuegos. 'Was it not enchanting?' she asked, her cameo features transfixed by memory."

So you don't have to puzzle much over what ails Jane Anderson of Atlanta, Ga.! She's plainly an addled, moon-struck female who whipped her emotions ragged till she ran out of thrills. So she gravitated to Germany where the Nazis played on her psychosis till she went altogether squirrely. And besides she was paid plenty—till she came unhooked.

One day Jane, del Santissima Trinidad, shortwaved what she called a "typical Nazi menu" such as "may be enjoyed at trifling cost anywhere in the Reich." I dis-remember the entire repast, but there was "puh-lentee of cream, butter, red meats, coffee" and such Falstaffian fodder. Germany was just wallowing in fatty abundance. Or so she said.

Well, the listening post of our OWI radio cut a verbatim record of her talk, as they always do, and piped it back to Germany with an introduction, "Germans—This is what the American traitor, Jane Anderson, says you are eating every day in Berlin." Then they turned on the intercepted recording in Miss Anderson's unmistakable sibilents. And that was the last we ever heard of Juana del Santissima, who may now be residing in a granite boudoir behind a steel lattice. But no milk-white pigeons!

30 Pieces of Silver!

WELL, THEN THERE IS ROBERT H. BE... [illegible] beats his bosom vocally from Berlin. He was a sullen, anti-social ex-U. S. correspondent who had served in the previous war as a U. S. artillery officer and was habitually possessed of an in-grown gripe. He, too, fell prey to exotic adventure, easy money and phony power—the trap of weak minds.

In his book, "What About Germany," Louis Lochner says, "This renegade American sold his soul and body for thirty pieces of silver. Even before we entered the war, he managed to take an operating part in Berlin black food market. When the other correspondents were freed from internment he sent us letters offering to supply our friends with foods and travel privilege for American dollars. None of us answered the swine."

It has been some time since we heard from Ezra Pound, the visionary versifier and men of belles letters who graduated from the University of Pennsylvania and went abroad on a travelling scholarship. His first volume of sophisticated jingles was, prophetically, "The Quenched Taper"—written from Italy. So Ezra gradually went foreign on us, like many another American "intellectual," and kept grinding out rhymes, fiddling with futuristic music and contributng heavily to such U. S. periodicals as the Saturday Evening Post. Finally he had enough U. S. cash to buy a hilltop villa near Rapello, Italy. And when the Axis went to war Ezra went Latin with a violent bang and began intoning his nasal radiorations imploring his "old compatriots to cast off the chains of mental servility and purge their souls of the mammon of deluded Democracy . . ." Such stuff!

So that's only a part of the sordid, unfinished tale of the apostate crew who sold out America to become radio traitors for the enemy. Their time grows short! Their reward is two edged contempt of their present body masters and former countrymen. Their end is either self-destruction or the hangman's noose! Yes, America has its quislings too!

Pro Grid Ready to Quit

War Department and War Manpower Commission orders may put a crimp in plans for professional, and intercollegiate, sports to operate during the next year, but the men at the head of things aren't too badly worried, according to the Associated Press.

"If suspension of professional sports will hasten V-Day by even an hour, we will gladly suspend our schedule," a representative of the National Football League, oldest pro grid loop in the nation said.

"We don't want to continue hockey if there is any interference with the war effort," Bill Tobin, president of the Chicago Blackhawks of the National Hockey League, said when asked what his opinion was concerning continuance of sports during the war.

Representatives of the western Conference, biggest intercollegiate group in the Midwest, echoed the same sentiment.

"If we have men to play who are either too young or ineligible for service duty we will continue," a spokesman for the Western Conference said. "If we don't have the players for football and basketball we just won't have teams."

While professional football and major league baseball had plenty of worries over the recent "work or fight" directive from Washington, National League hockey had a real headache over an edict from the Canadian government.

Selective Service offices in Canada told the officials of the league that no further exit permits would be issued to discharged servicemen unless they had served overseas. A majority of the hockey players in the league are Canadians, and play games in the United States on exit permits.

The work or fight order hit baseball hardest. Baseball players have a game almost every day, and cannot, because of their schedules, take war plant jobs.

While they may work in essential jobs during the wintertime, their extensive travel during almost seven months of the year precludes that possibility during their training season and the league schedule.

Most professional football players, however, who have but one game a week, work in war plants, and the majority of them either are classified 4-F, or are discharged veterans. There are few 1-A classifications on National Football League rosters.

Silver Skates Deadline Friday

They've been pinning her up all over the world but it took the directors of the Silver Skates Derby to pin Eleanor O'Meara down to a skating date at the Boston Garden, Sunday afternoon, Feb. 4, when the former Ice Capades star will be topping the entertainment arranged for this gala ice carnival.

Miss O'Meara will be no stranger to the local fans. Last year she was skating in the Capades here at the Garden and her Blue Danube spectacle was one of the features of that show.

Before turning professional, Miss O'Meara was the Canadian and American International gold medalist.

In the past nine-year history of the Silver Skates Derby, such outstanding stars as Vera Hruba Ralston, Megan Taylor, Belita and Hazel Franklin have highlighted the program. This year, the Derby directors have taken their grandest step—at least from the fans' point of view—in acquiring the lovely Miss O'Meara.

And with this announcement comes the warning that the entry lists will close this Friday with the midnight postmark. There are still five days to get your entry in the mails. With the possible exception of servicemen, there will be no post entries.

Get your entry in now and be assured of the opportunity of skating on the same program with such a champion as Eleanor O'Meara.

MIKE GILLOOLY

Ticket Sale

Tickets for the 10th annual Silver Skates Derby are now on sale at the Boston Garden, the Arena and the James W. Brine Sporting Goods store at 92 Summer st.

All boxes and the entire lower floor will be $1, the entire first balcony is priced at 50 cents and the second balcony is 35 cents. These prices include tax.

Scheffer, Gaudet Top Legion Mat Card

Pat Scheffer and Tony Gaudet of Canada will feature the wrestling show at Intercolonial Hall, Dudley st. tomorrow night under the auspices of the Canadian Legion Post No. 1 of Boston. In the semi-final, Giant McKaskill of Brockton takes on Billy Walters of the Navy Yard.

Mangrum Carries Off $5000 Tucson Open

TUCSON, Ariz., Jan. 22 (INS)—With a par-shattering 64 on his last round, Ray Mangrum of Los Angeles won the $5000 Tucson open golf tournament. Mangrum's 72-hole total was 268, twelve under par.

Byron Nelson of Toledo, Ohio, finished second, one stroke behind Mangrum, and the comparatively unknown Jim Gaunt of Ardmore, Okla., took third place with 271.

Heavyweights Top Mack's Card

Heavyweights again will top the Callahan A. C. fistic program at Mechanics Hall Thursday night, when Elmer Ray of Los Angeles, Cal., return to the Hub for an engagement with Portly Henry Jones of Philadelphia in a contest scheduled for 10 rounds.

Ray and Jones both won one-sided decisions over "Iron-man" Earl Lowman in Boston battles, while Ray put Mickey Hayes to sleep in his last appearance here and Jones scored an easy kayo win over Johnny White last week.

While both are punch-packers, local fans will be stringing along with Ray to annex a victory, possibly by the kayo route.

Some boxing wisemen predict that Ray is headed for fame among the heavyweights.

Two National Speed Skate Marks Set

MINNEAPOLIS, Jan. 22 (AP)—Two national speed skating marks fell as Bobby Fitzgerald, Minneapolis, and Eileen Whalley, Winnipeg, took top honors in the senior men and women's divisions to star in the two-day Ten Thousand Lakes skating meet.

NOT OUT OF NICE SMELLING BOTTLES!

You can't grow hair by putting hair tonic on your scalp. The hair you have grows because of what nature is doing inside your scalp and not because of anything you put on the outside.

In other words, you can't regrow hair. Neither can we. All we do is help you save what hair you have.

If your scalp is now excessively itchy, oily or dry, or if the hair fall seems alarming to you each morning, you should have our professional advice. We'll gladly make an examination without charge or obligation and tell you the exact condition of your hair and scalp.

Doctors Welcome Recent Ruling of Draft Head

By JACK CONWAY

The next six weeks will determine the future of professional sports in the United States. It is expected that during this period enough athletes in 4-F of the draft will be called for under the re-examination program to determine what material will be left for the 1945 sports parade.

Joe Savoldi

The latest order calling for War Department approval of the rejection of a professional athlete eliminates the possibility of favoritism by a local doctor. This ruling was welcomed by most doctors as they felt they were open to criticism when they honestly turned down a professional athlete.

In cases where athletes have serious physical disabilities they are entitled to the same consideration as other persons registered under the draft.

Baseball and the other sports will keep going with the best available material as long as they can. A continuation of the present sweeping victories of the Allies in Europe may cause a collapse of Germany which would result in a change of the entire sports picture.

Once Germany is defeated, all sports, and this includes horse racing, are expected to be resumed almost on a normal basis. The discharge of thousands of soldiers would furnish the necessary playing material.

The owners of the big racing stables intend to be prepared for the possible ending of the war in Europe this year. This is why they are devoting so much attention to the care and training of their thoroughbreds.

Joe Savoldi Returns

Joe Savoldi, former Notre Dame back, has returned to the United States after service with the Army in Italy. Savoldi has gone back into action in the wrestling game and will meet Jack O'Brien at Norfolk, Va., on Wednesday night. Savoldi introduced the dropkick into wrestling during the period when Gus Sonnenberg, Dartmouth, and Ed George, Michigan, were at their peak.

Absenteeism Charged

The Thoroughbred Racing Association has had a detailed checkup made of absenteeism in war plants. It shows that there is as much absenteeism now as when the race tracks were in operation. Racing intends to follow its policy of full co-operation with the government. After a "cooling off" period, racing will ask that the present ban be modified. The leaders of the turf agree with the government's policy of trimming down everything that is nonessential, but they believe that no one sport or business should be eliminated.

The various states that have been relying upon racing revenue to meet soaring expenses are expected to ask for an easing of the racing ban if the war picture continues to improve.

Random Shots at Target

Ens. William Foley, son of Dist. Atty. Foley, was one of thousands of service men who were happy to come ashore from their ships for a brief liberty at Norfolk. Ens. Foley attended Boston College High and Holy Cross. Ens. Paul O'Sullivan of Dorchester, Boston College High and Tufts V-12, has been directing members of the shore patrol in Norfolk. He has also been taking special advanced naval courses . . . A brother, a Marine flier was killed when his dive bomber crashed into the Pacific off San Diego . . . A second brother, an ensign, has been in the South Pacific for 14 months.

Surgeon Busy At Wings Game

Lt. Com. Weston Adams, president of the Bruins, recently returned from active service, hadn't seen the Typhoons until last night. He couldn't have selected a better evening to take a look-see at Billy Cupolo, Frankie Mario and Kenny Smith, who corralled a total of 11 points.

★ ★ ★

The Rangers had only eight forwards, due to the absence of Grant Warwick, whose ulcers kicked up on him and he was left in a Montreal hospital. As a result, Capt. Ott Heller had to double in brass. He played right wing on a line with Al DeMarco and Hank Goldup and then dropped back on the defense.

★ ★ ★

The Red Wings-Canadiens game in Detroit was a battle royal and Referee Bill Chadwick had his hands full keeping the contest under control. Elmer Lach opened up Bill Quackenbush for two stitches in the first period and Eddie Bruneteau reached "Buddy" O'Connor, who never bothers anyone, for four stitches. Earl Seibert retired to have the same number taken later in the game.

★ ★ ★

For a time he looked as though there wouldn't be a game. The Rangers' trunks didn't arrive from Montreal until 8:00. The Rangers' train was so late that the players didn't check in at the Manger, going direct to their dressing room in the Garden.

★ ★ ★

Mike Karakas, Blackhawks goalie came up with his second shutout of the season when he blanked the Maple Leafs 4 to 0. Mike and Frank "Finn" McCool of Toronto now have accounted for four of the six 1944-45 N. H. L. shutouts. BILL GRIMES.

Bucky Harris Takes Reins in Buffalo

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 22 (AP) —Bucky Harris, playing manager of the Buffalo International League Baseball team, had been placed in "full charge" of the club today, taking over the general managership formerly held by John C. Stiglmeier.

Stiglmeier, the team's general manager for four years, asserted last night he had been "fired," adding, "I feel pretty good about it, but I distinctly want it stated that I was fired." He said he had offered several times to resign.

THEY'LL DO IT EVERY TIME

GOOD EVENING—MRS. POP-GIRDLE ? MR CREAVY OF THE ECZEMA LIFE INSURANCE CO., IS MY NAME—THERE'S A LITTLE OMISSION IN YOUR INSURANCE APPLICATION. YOU NEGLECTED TO STATE YOUR AGE—
OOH!'. IS THAT SO NECESSARY? ER-COULD I PHONE YOU ? I'M SO BUSY RIGHT NOW—
OH, BOY—THIS IS THE ONLY TIME I EVER HEARD MOM STUCK FOR WORDS
WHY DO THEY HAVE TO KNOW A PERSON'S AGE JUST TO INSURE THEM? H'MMPH!
I WANT TO HEAR THIS—SHE'D NEVER TELL ME HOW OLD SHE WAS MOM WILL PASS UP THE POLICY BEFORE SHE'LL SAY SHE'S OVER TWENTY-ONE-
IF THEY'D JUST ASK THE LADY NEXT DOOR, THEY'D GET NEARER THE TRUTH"

New Hockey Scoring Rule Riles Players

By BILL GRIMES

White paper is so essential to the war effort that it would be unpatriotic to go into the details of the Bruins 14 to 3 victory over the Rangers last night at the Boston Garden.

Suffice to say that the Bruins scored almost at will, that Kenny Smith, Frankie Mario and Billy Cupolo, the Typhoons, picked up 11 points and that Bill Cowley pulled that "hat trick" one better, by scoring four goals.

However, the War Production Board should permit a few details on the reaction Pres. Mervyn "Red" Dutton's latest revisions of the scoring rules.

Last week the N. H. L. official scorers were instructed by Pres. Dutton to change their scoring systems. For two seasons Dutton has been trying to cut down the number of assists. Finally he took the bit in his teeeth and sent out "MUSTS" to the scorers.

ONE ASSIST ON REBOUND

"In all future games," read the Dutton notice, "only one assist shall be given on any rebound from a goalkeeper and only if a player has taken part in the play previous to a goal being scored on a rebound."

(Pres. Dutton should clarify that section of the notice. What happens if a player scores on his own rebound?)

"A player shall be deemed to have lost possession of the puck," continues the notice, "if it touches any part of an opposing player, and NO ASSISTS shall be given on a goal unless the puck has been handled by one or more players of the same side after being in possession of, or striking an opposing player."

Well, there were 30 goals scored in the N. H. L. last night. On the 17 goals scored at the Boston Garden, there were only 16 assists. Out in Detroit, where the Canucks knocked off the Red Wings 6 to 3, the official scorer handed out eight assists but in the 4 to 0 Blackhawks-Maple Leafs game in Chicago, it was four for four.

Naturally, the players yelled murder. They'd been robbed. Their passes didn't touch any member of the opposing club. But, when they discover that the scoring was low in all cities, they'll know that Pres. Dutton means business.

Pres. Dutton should be well satisfied with last night's scoring which produced only 28 assists on 30 goals.

Because they've been aware of the looseness with which scorers have handed out assists, managers have never paid off on that end of the game. But in the future, assists can be used as talking points when players are seeking increases in salaries.

N. H. L. Standings

	W.	L.	T.	Pts.	For	Ag.
Montreal	24	5	3	50	141	73
Detroit	19	8	6	42	146	107
Toronto	15	14	2	32	113	106
BOSTON	11	17	2	23	118	129
New York	6	17	2	14	90	147
Chicago	6	19	4	14	77	123

RESULTS LAST NIGHT
BRUINS 14, Rangers 3.
Canadiens 6, Red Wings 3.
Blackhawks 4, Maple Leafs 0.

Final Day for Hearst Shoot

Today is the deadline for the William Randolph Hearst Citizen Marksmanship Competition.

This is your last chance to clip the attached entry blank which will make you eligible for New England's greatest rifle competition.

There are already close to 50 teams under the wire and it is expected that the list will hit about 75 when the final tabulations are made.

Remember there is no entry fee of any kind. The initial firing is done on your range and then the top five teams meet shoulder to shoulder in the finals.

If you have any questions, get in touch with the rifle editor at once.

Hub Boys in Husky Meet

By MIKE GILLOOLY

Boston schoolboy trackmen, followin g their tune-ups at the Y. M. C. A. games last week, will move into the more serious p hase of their leg-work this week as the Joe McKenney league launches its daily games at the 101st Armory before swinging en-masse into the first major tournament of the season Saturday afternoon—the Northeastern meet.

Once again, it will be held on the Huntington ave. Y boards with a field of 30 schools already entered in the competition.

But before the Boston boys swing into this big test, they'll all get an opportunity to test their strength in the series of meets within their own ranks. All district and intown teams will be in line for quadrangular meets, starting today with the clash among Latin, Tech, Dorchester and Trade, and running daily through Thursday afternoon.

Meanwhile, the late starting hockey league will continue at its heated pace with sessions at the Garden and Arena Friday afternoon. The Garden meeting will pit Trade against Roxbury Memorial; Commerce against Tech and English against Dorchester while in the district school session at the Arena, East Boston will meet Roslindale; Brighton will face Charlestown; Brandeis will battle Hyde Park and South Boston will tangle with Jamaica Plain.

And they'll even be back at the Garden with another pair of basketball games Thursday afternoon. These will find Latin returning to face Commerce; and South Boston's classy five, led by Gus Ryan, tangling with Roslindale.

Rindge Tech's classy 2-1 victory over Medford in the Greater Boston League has skyrocketed interest in the senior circuit so that Saturday afternoon's return to the Garden should find the biggest crowd of the season in attendance. Rindge will open the session against Cambridge Latin, Belmont will follow against Newton, Stoneham will try to keep pace on top against Arlington while the Mustangs will be in for another stiff test against Melrose.

The other leagues will be following their regular pattern. The Bay Staters and the Eastern Mass. loop will be at the Arena Saturday afternoon while the Catholic circuit will stay at the Skating Club that night.

Road to Battle—Truckborne infantry of the American First Army moves toward the fighting front approaching St. Vith, Belgium, where today the troops are reported fighting within three miles of the important Nazi stronghold. The Germans are fighting desperately along this sector to permit their comrades opportunity to escape toward the Reich from their ill-fated drive into Belgium.
